INTERESTING FROM WASHINGTON.

Official Dispatches from China—The Action on the Peiho—The Part taken by our Naval Forces—One American Killed and Another Wounded, &c.

WASHINGTON, Wednesday, Sept. 28.

The dispatches received by the Government narrate with minuteness the recent events in China Flag-officer TATNALL says that the British officer in charge of the gun-boats having visited him said nothing about aid, but his silent appeal was powerful indeed. During the few moments he was on board the Powhatan he would look anxiously at his Admiral and at the boats. "After he left," continues Capt. TATNALL, "I held a conversation with our Commissioner, Mr. WARD, and he agreed with me perfectly that, under the circumstances of our position with the English, and the aid the Admiral tendered me the day before, I could do no less than tow the boats to his relief. I made the offer, which was thankfully and promptly accepted. While the boats were making fast to the hawsers, which I veered astern, I insisted on Mr. WARD and his suite leaving the Toey-Wam, and going on board one of the junks, for reasons which will be obvious. He at first reluctantly yielded, and left us, but soon returned in one of the English boats, declaring that as the Toey-Wam was his home, and going under fire with his approbation and concurrence, he would remain in her. I reluctantly yielded to his gallant impulse." Capt. TATNALL towed the boats through the British line, to within a short distance of the Admiral, whose flag was flying, when, casting them off, he retired to the rear of the line and anchored for the night. He took up this position as it might enable him to aid the wounded, and should any boats be sunk to rescue their crews—in other words, to "afford all the aid consistent with neutrality." Having been informed by a British officer that the Admiral was dangerously wounded, Capt. TATNALL went in a barge to visit him. When within a few feet of the Cormorant a round shot struck the boat, killed the coxswain, Mr. HART of Brooklyn, N. Y., and slightly wounded Flag-Lieutenant TRENCHARD. They reached the Cormorant before the boat entirely sank. Capt. TATNALL says the Chinese Commissioners had previously notified Mr. WARD of their arrangements, and requested him to accompany the British and French Ministers to the Peiho. To this he consented, thereby to a certain extent assuming the same platform with the latter. The sincerity of the Commissioners was much doubted at the time.

Dates from Arizona to the 8th inst., say an express had arrived, bringing news of the complete submission of the Mojave Indians to Maj. ARMISTEAD. They acknowledge a large number of killed, surrender a fine tract of land for the use of the Government, and promise never again to molest the whites. Maj. ARMISTEAD is on his way East, on twelve months' leave.

The reports to Gen. CLARKE say that the Colorado River is a more reliable stream for navigation than the Red River, the Missouri, the Upper Mississippi or Minnesota River. The new steamer Cocopa made the trip from Fort Yuma to Fort Mojave, (Beale's crossing,) 225 miles, in five days, cutting her own wood on the way. This trip demonstrates the success of Lieut. IVES' exploration, made last year.

The Overland Mail Company's station, sixty miles above Fort Yuma, was robbed of all its horses by the Mexicans, and the station-keeper left for dead. A portion of the Americans on the Gila River had determined to drive off all the Mexicans on the river on account of this outrage, and a collision had occurred in which, it is said, six Mexicans were killed. There being no law or officer in Arizona, no arrests were made. The Mexican population at the Gila and Colorado mines were much alarmed.

Lieut. MOWRY's election as Delegate from Arizona was unanimous. Out of 3,000 votes, it is not known that even one was against him.

Settlements of emigrants have commenced on the San Fedro River.

The Apaches have been very bold in their depredations, and Col. REEVE, of Fort Buchanan, has applied for reinforcements.

The St. Louis Agricultural and Mechanical Fair.

ST. LOUIS, Wednesday, Sept. 28.

The principal feature of the Fair to-day was the awarding of the St. Louis prize, No. 1, of $1,000, to the best thorough-bred bull of any age, which was taken by Duke of Airdue, owned by R. A. ALEXANDER, of Woodford County, Ky. This ring numbered fourteen entries, embracing many of the noblest animals in the country. The regular premium of $100 for four-year old bulls was awarded to King Alfred, owned by J. N. BROWN, of Sangamon, Ill. Of stallions for all work there were 56 entries, and the first premium was awarded to Henry Clay, (Black Hawk,) owned by BEN. E. HARRIS, of Macon County, Mo. The weather continues delightful, and the influx of strangers to the city is incessant. The number of visitors on the grounds today must have reached 40,000. The Steam Fire Department had their annual parade to-day, and visited the fair grounds, eliciting universal admiration for their splendid display. THE CANAL CONVENTION AT UTICA.

Action in Favor of Telling the Railroads—Preparations for the Legislative Elections—Letters from Candidates, &c.

UTICA, Wednesday, Sept. 28.

The Canal Convention assembled at 11 o'clock at the City Hall.

CARLOS COBB, of Buffalo, organized the body by nominating HENRY FITZHUGH, of Oswego, as Chairman.

Albert Sawin, of Erie; T. T. Flagler, of Niagara; James Galleny, of Monroe; W. H. Shankland, of Onondaga; A. P. Seymour, of Oneida; W. Clark, of Montgomery; W. T. Cuyler, of Livingston; L. D. Collins, of Troy; John McVean, of Dutchess, and D. H. Elton, of New-York, were chosen Vice-Presidents.

W. MONTEITH, of Buffalo; J. E. LYON, of Oswego; S. G. CHASE, of Albany; and J. LEWIS, of Yates, were chosen Secretaries.

About two hundred delegates were present.

A. H. HOVEY, of Onondaga, read the call of the meeting, and addressed the Convention on the subject of the Canal and commercial interests of the State, and moved for a Committee of Eleven on resolutions and business.

The following Committee was appointed: S. B. Hunt, of Erie; L. A. Spaulding, of Niagara; Thomas Parsons, of Monroe; L. B. Crocker, of Orange; A. H. Hovey, of Onondaga; R. C. Palmer, of Oneida; S. G. Chase, of Albany; J. H. Mallory, of New-York; C. H. Thompson, of Steuben; E. H. Edwards, of Broome.

ANSEL BASCOMB, of Broome, during the absence of the Committee, addressed the Convention, giving a history of the movement out of which this Convention grew, and which had for its object the protection of the canals against the competition of the railroads. He stated the quarrel had arisen in the Committee, and he had been accused of making indiscreet attacks on the railroads at Rochester. He had been declared unfitted to be a delegate to deliberate here on matters in relation to the canals. He stood here prepared to justify his position. He declared that this movement was against the railroads, and indulged in the usual bitter attack upon those corporations for alleged corruptions, laying at their doors all the evils of taxation, the decrease of the canal revenues, &c., in the State.

After some immaterial talk the Convention took a recess till 2 o'clock.

Questions having been addressed to the various candidates requesting their answers on certain points, replies were received from Messrs. TREMAIN, DENNISTON, CHURCH, DORSHEIMER, SKINNER, and VAN R. RICHMOND.

A telegram from D. R. F. JONES states that he is in favor of the canals, but received the letter too late to reply.

Comptroller CHURCH writes as follows:

ALBANY, Tuesday, Sept. 27, 1859.

GENTLEMEN: Your favor, making certain inquiries relative to my views as to the best policy of promoting the interests of the canals, came too late to enable me to make any other than a brief reply. I have no personal interest in either the canals or the railroads of this State, except as a citizen of the State, and am therefore in a position to act independently and impartially on any question which may call for my official action. Since I have held the office of Comptroller I have labored earnestly and with such success as the limited means at the command of the State, and the embarrassments of the Treasury would permit, to increase the capacity of the canals for business, and I am sincerely in favor of their final completion as soon as means are provided by the Legislature for that purpose, and I have supposed that this could be done so as to bring them into use with seven feet of water in the Spring of 1860.

I shall most cheerfully render all the assistance in my power to accomplish that object. I am opposed to either the sale or lease of the canals, and in favor of maintaining the constitutional prohibition against such a disposition of them. I am decidedly in favor of adopting such a policy in reference to the management of the canals as will secure for them the greatest amount of business, and avert the evils of which your third interrogatory complains. As a member of the Canal Board I have favored, and shall continue to favor, the policy of guarding the revenues, and protecting the business of the Canals by all legal and just modes, and whatever legislation may be necessary to defend these great avenues of trade and the commerce of the State against unfair competition and unjust aggression should be adopted. The State in its Canal policy should be true to its own interests and faithful to the rights and interests of its citizens, and certainly the latter should not be placed in a more unfavorable position in respect to the use of our own public works than the citizens of other States. It is eminently just that the productions of other States which have been so largely enhanced in value by the construction of our canals, should bear a share of the burden of their cost and maintainance, and not stand on a more favored footing than those of our own State. On the contrary, sound policy plainly dictates that the interest of our own citizens should have the first and most favorable consideration. In the rise of our canals and railrodes, there should be no hesitation in shaping our legislation to the consummation of this policy. Briefly, but as fully as the time for answering your letter allows, I have thus indicated my views concerning the great interests to which you and those associated with you are devoted. You have my sympathies and coöperation in all just efforts to complete and perfect our noble system of public works, and render them in the highest degree tributary to the vast interests of commerce, and the highest prosperity and happiness of the people of this State.

I am, yours truly,
S. E. CHURCH.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

Mr. G. ALVORD offered a resolution, that it is inexpedient for this Convention to select at this time from the candidates now in nomination by the political parties any whom they shall point to as their peculiar choice; but we leave the question of who are friends to the interests we represent to be answered unmistakeably by the persons in nomination before the day of election. Tabled for the present.

Dr. S. B. HUNT, from the Committee on Resolutions, reported a series, as follows:

First—Advocating a return to the original Canal policy of the State, which was, that property passing through the State should pay the debt of the State by the impositions of tolls generally on Railroads.

Second—In favor of compelling by law Railroad corporations of the State to carry the property of our own citizens on equal terms with the property of citizens of other States, and in the opinion of the Convention such a law would be eminently just to the citizens of the State, and must be conceded on the part of such corporations.

Third—That it is the duty of the next Legislature to provide by tax for the completion of the Canals of the State, and the closing of their construction account prior to the opening of the season for navigation in 1860, with as great an extension of the length of the locks as is practicable within the present walls.

Fourth—That a tax is unavoidable till the Winter of 1861-2, and in favor of a temporary loan in anticipation of the collection of such tax.

Fifth—Holding the Canal Commissioners responsible for the repairs of the canals, although let by contract, and requiring them to exact from the contractors a constant condition of perfect repair.

Sixth—Instructing the State Committee to prepare interrogatories for the candidates for office, embracing the measures advocated by the Convention, and that the replies be published as a guide to canal men in deciding as to the ability of the various candidates.

A debate ensued, the general impression being opposed to tolling the railroads.

The first resolution was laid over.

The second was amended, on motion of D. C. LITTLEJOHN, by striking out the concluding sentence, which declared that a pro-rata bill must be conceded by the railroads.

When the third resolution came up, Mr. A. C. HONEY moved to strike out the portion recommending the enlargement of the locks. Adopted.

At the evening session, resolutions in favor of tolling the railroads, and providing for committees to conduct the legislative elections were adopted.

Adjourned sine die.

EPISCOPAL DIOCESAN CONVENTION.

Opening Exercises—Sermon by the Rev. Dr. Lewis—The Communion—Organization—Preliminary Business.

The proceedings of the Protestant Episcopal Convention of the Diocese of New-York began yesterday morning in St. John's Chapel in Varick-street. The attendance of delegates was large, being enough to fill the ground floor, which was reserved for them exclusively. The gallery was set apart for the public, which had its representation in a numerous assemblage of ladies. The Convention was opened by the usual religious services, in celebrating which Bishop POTTER took the leading part, and was assisted by Bishop SCOTT, of Oregon, Bishop LEE, of Iowa, Bishop UPFOLD, of Indiana, and several clergymen of the Diocese. The collection at the Offertory was announced as being for the benefit of Diocesan Missions, and, in compliance with Bishop POTTER's express desire, was taken up by four deacons, robed according to their order.

The sermon, which was delivered by the Rev. Dr LEWIS, of Brooklyn, was based on the sixth verse of the seventh chapter of Kings, book second: "And the house, when it was building, was built of stone, made ready before it was brought thither, so that there was neither hammer, nor axe, nor any tool of iron heard in the house while it was in building." This, the preacher said, had a typical meaning; this first tabernacle was a type of the Church. The fact that the temple was built without sound of any tool of iron, was meant to signify that the Church of Christ was to be established by quiet means, and by a noiseless growth. Iron was so much used for purposes of war that the God of Peace would not have his temple defiled with it. The point to which he invited attention was the peaceful and silent, yet powerful progress of Christ's kingdom, as foreshadowed by the names in which the temple of Solomon was erected. This was illustrated, first, by the work of grace in the individual Christian. Every believer was called "The Temple of God," and was built, for the most part, quietly and unobtrusively. It was not so with the recipient of worldly honors. Hence the necessity of men to live a quiet and a hopeful life. It was the tendency of the Church to make men studious of the milder graces of the Gospel—of humility and meekness—and faithful in all the relations of life. No doubt the Church suffered in the estimation of other religious bodies, because of this very fact, because that her clergy did not appear in the pulpit as leaders in the political strifes of the day, and were not, and desired not to be what were called "sensation preachers." Therefore they were considered as belonging to a dead church. But there were instances enough to show that they would rise as fast and as fair as if there were more of the sound of the axe and the hammer among them. As to the Church, which was also called "The Temple of God," it was reared silently, and the progress of the gospel, though slow, was ever advancing. If they had not ever-present and remarkable results to discourage them, they might often despair; but there was often a vast amount of good done that never meets the eye, and he temple grows though there be no sound of axe or of hammer. Looking at the kingdom of Christ, in a more general view, they might yet be more hopeful. The signs of the times were not unpromising Seen in some particular respects, they were not indeed encouraging, but the promise that the gates of Hell should not prevail against the Church, was made to it as a whole, and to it, as a whole, that promise ever had and ever would be fulfilled. Twenty-eight new Dioceses had been established by their generous mother Church within the last eighteen years, and most of these on soil that had been reclaimed from heathenism. Never was the Church in this country in a more hopeful position, if it had grace and wisdom to improve it. Never was there a larger number of ardent workers in the ministry, never a greater promise of unity among all God's people. He had chosen this theme because it was inspiring to the private Christian and the minister of Christ, and because they needed encouragement. Sursum Corda was ever the battle cry of the Church of Christ in all ages, and let it be so still. In conclusion he besought his brethren to be careful to disarm worldly cavil by having their own souls washed in the blood of the Lamb, and cleansed by the spirit of Christ.

After the reading of the Communion service, the sacrament was administered by the four bishops, who first partook of it, to all the delegates present. Two of the communicants were colored clergymen. The post-communion prayers were read by the Bishop (UPFOLD) of Indiana, and in the singing of the Gloria in Excelsis, which followed, the entire assemblage joined with admirable effect. The prelate last named pronounced the benediction.

When the services had concluded, an informal recess occurred, and at 2½ o'clock the Convention entered upon the business for the discharge of which it had been convoked. Bishop POTTER presided. The Rev. Mr. EIGENBRODT, senior Secretary of the previous Convention, called the roll—first, of the clergymen of the diocese, and next of the churches entitled to representation by lay delegates. Ex-Gov. KING appeared as a delegate from Jamaica. The Hon. LUTHER BRADISH and Mr. DUNCOMBE were unanimously appointed to aid the Secretaries in examining the credentials submitted by this lay representation. This occupied no little time. When it was over, the Secretary announced that several certificates were informal because of their not having the signatures of the rectors of the churches from which lay delegates, who presented them, were respectively sent. A quorum being present, Dr. EIGENBRODT moved that the Bishops present from other Dioceses be invited to take seats in the chancel during the sessions of the Convention. This was carried.

Dr. EIGENBRODT was reëlected to the office of Secretary, and, at his request, the Convention voted the reappointment of the Rev. W. G. FARRINGDON as Assistant-Secretary. The reading of the rules of order had previously, on motion, been dispensed with.

The application of the Churches of All Angels, in this City, and of St. Barnabas, Irvington, for admission to the Convention, were referred to the Committee on the Incorporation of Churches.

Mr. W. H. HARRISON, one of the lay delegates, gave notice of a motion to modify the ninth canon, in order to provide that the election of delegates shall be held one year before the meeting of the General Convention, instead of being left almost undecided, as is now the case.

The subjoined resolutions were offered by the Secretary, and adopted nem. con.:

Resolved, That the present Trustees of the General Theological Seminary, who represent this Diocese, being resident therein, who have served or signified their willingness to serve, be nominated to the next General Convention for election as Trustees on the part of this Diocese.

Resolved, That the Standing Committee of this house on the Theological Seminary report the names of as many other suitable persons as may be necessary to fill the number secured to this Diocese by the Constitution of the Seminary, for nomination to the next General Convention for election, as Trustees also on the part of the Diocese.

Resolved, That in compliance with canon VIII. of this Diocese, a Committee be appointed to assist the Provisional Bishop in preparing a report of the state of the Church in this, and a list of the clergy to be presented to the general Convention.

The Bishop named as the Committee required by the last resolution, Dr. EIGENBRODT, Dr. HAIGHT and the Rev. Mr. ROWLAND.

The following resolution was also adopted:

Resolved, That it be referred to the Committee on Canons to consider whether it be expedient to erase from the list of churches in union with this Convention the names of churches which may have become extinct, and, if so, under what circumstances; and to report some proper constitutional or canonical provision for that purpose.

At 3 o'clock a motion to adjourn till to-day at 9 A. M., was put and carried, and the Rt. Rev. Bishop, in declaring the proceedings of the day to be closed, informed the clergymen that his house would be open to them during the evening.

The People's Coffee-Room.

To the Editor of the New-York Times:

You have been kind enough to notice our room, but we fear the public generally may not understand that the great object is to make it self-supporting, and mean to give the best and cheapest tea, coffee and lunches that can be found in the City, and the greatest charity the public can do the room is to come and buy our coffee, pressed sandwiches, &c., &c. If this room pays its own way, there will be hundreds of small coffee-rooms started and the young men can have a social place without being in danger of being ruined.

Would you kindly, for the sake of the cause, publish this notice, and let the people know the Room is No. 26 New Bowery, near Chatham-square and Pearl-street.

Yours respectfully,
ORVILLE GARDNER.

THE HOMICIDE OF DR. GRAHAM.

Particulars of the Affray with Toledano—The Post-Mortem Examination, and the Coroner's Inquest.

In our New-Orleans exchanges we find very full particulars of the affray between Dr. ROBERT M. GRAHAM and Mr. ERNEST TOLEDANO, in which the former lost his life. Since the Saturday previous, says the Courier, it appears that Dr. GRAHAM, who had been drinking more than usual, had been denouncing Mr. TOLEDANO as a coward, etc., and uttering threats to shoot him whenever he met him. The cause of this display of ill-feeling on Dr. GRAHAM's part, as he stated himself, was because Mr. TOLEDANO defeated his election as one of the city physicians—a position obtained by Dr. HART.

On Saturday, about 12 o'clock, TOLEDANO was informed by a friend of Dr. GRAHAM's conduct, and the threats used by him. The gentleman advised TOLEDANO to arm himself, as he said he had then no weapon about him, and the advice was taken, as he procured a five-barreled revolver when he went home, and has carried it since. On Saturday night TOLEDANO came up town, and stopped at the corner of St. Charles and Common streets, and met some friends there. They had been to the Union Coffee-house on Common-street; saw Dr. GRAHAM there, and heard him speak of TOLEDANO in the unfriendly way above described. They succeeded in persuading TOLEDANO to go away, and nothing further occurred that night. On Sunday Dr. GRAHAM was again excited, and told one or more persons his opinion of TOLEDANO, and his determination to shoot him whenever they met.

Shortly before 8 o'clock last night, TOLEDANO came up town by St. Charles-street, and took a drink in the "Union." He then crossed the street, met an acquaintance in front of the United States Restaurant, and after a brief conversation, was invited to take a drink in the "Ruby," and both went in. As TOLEDANO entered the bar-room, Dr. GRAHAM was standing with a friend at the bar. The recognition by both of each other appears to have been simultaneous. As TOLEDANO approached, Dr. GRAHAM put his hand into his breast, as if to draw a weapon. TOLEDANO instantly drew a revolver and fired several times. Dr. GRAHAM then passed out, was seen to stagger at the bar-room door, again stagger on the sidewalk, and reel, rather than walk, to the middle of the street, and fall there. He was immediately carried into the "Ruby," and Dr. BENSADON, who happened to be in the neighborhood when the firing took place, stripped him, and ordered some simple restoratives. The wounded man, however, was past medical aid, for he expired in ten or fifteen minutes. Four bullet wounds were found in the right side of the breast, and within two or three inches of each other.

TOLEDANO surrendered himself, and was taken to the First District Police Station. The deceased was subsequently removed to the office of the Chief of Police, until his family could be informed of the unhappy occurrence. Two pistols were brought to the Police office; the revolver used by the prisoner, and a single-barreled Derringer, which officer BERNARD found in the street, near the place where the deceased had fallen. All the barrels of TOLEDANO's weapon were empty. Dr. GRAHAM's pistol had not been discharged. Besides the marks of four bullets that entered Dr. GRAHAM's body, the evidence of a fifth shot having been fired was clear, as a bullet was found imbedded in the wall of the bar-room.

A second Derringer was also found on the deceased by a young gentleman who was the first to reach Dr. GRAHAM after he had fallen. The pistol was in the pocket of his pantaloons.

THE POST-MORTEM EXAMINATION.

The post-mortem examination on the body of Dr. GRAHAM was made at the residence of the deceased by Dr. DELERY, one of the city physicians, assisted by Dr. ROSENFELDT. The examination showed that the deceased had received four wounds, one entering the right breast, near the seventh rib, and passing through the spine and liver; the second entering the same side of the breast, but above the other bullet, and passing through the spleen and kidney; a third ball inflicting a flesh wound also in the right breast, passing out about two inches from where it entered; and a fourth ball entering the inner side of the left arm, below the elbow, and lodging there. A fifth bullet went through Dr. GRAHAM's coat behind, and which was, doubtless, the one that was found imbedded in the wall. Either of the balls that entered the body were sufficient to cause death.

THE CORONER'S INQUEST.

The Coroner's investigation, after one day's postponement on account of the absence of witnesses, took place on Wednesday, the 21st. The testimony was taken in the Criminal Court room, and a large crowd assembled there to listen to the proceedings. The principal witnesses in regard to the actual homicide were Dr. BENSADON, who was talking to Dr. GRAHAM when the rencontre took place, and THOMAS DOLAN, who went into the Ruby to drink with Mr. TOLEDANO. The chief witnesses in regard to the threats made against Mr. TOLEDANO by Dr. GRAHAM, were Messrs. HARRY WATERS, E. A. PATTERSON, HITZELBERGER, JOHN T. MONROE, MOISE DEJEAN and Col. HENRY, all of whom gave testimony relative to the determination announced by Dr. GRAHAM, of killing Mr. TOLEDANO whenever he met him.

Dr. BENSADON testified that he went into the Ruby and met Dr. GRAHAM there, who told him he was looking for that d——d scoundrel ERNEST TOLEDANO, whom he intended killing. As Dr. BENSADON asked GRAHAM to go out in the air, and turned to light a cigar, he saw TOLEDANO and another gentleman enter, and then heard GRAHAM say there is the d——n scoundrel. The witness then saw both draw their pistols, but he was certain GRAHAM drew his first. The firing then commenced. The witness could not tell who fired first, nor what kind of pistols they used.

Mr. DOLAN testified that as he went into the Ruby he saw Dr. GRAHAM, whom he only knew by name, standing at the bar. He observed GRAHAM put his hand to his left breast and produce a single bareled pistol. As I turned to take a drink with TOLEDANO two shots went off simultaneously. The witness did not know who fired these shots, but afterwards saw TOLEDANO shoot two or three times. GRAHAM then walked out and TOLEDANO followed and delivered himself up to a police officer.

Mr. WATERS testified that a short time before the meeting between TOLEDANO and GRAHAM, GRAHAM met him on Common-street, and commenced abusing Mr. TOLEDANO, and said he would settle for him as soon as he met him. GRAHAM then wanted to fight with the witness, and made a motion as if to draw a weapon, when witness advanced and told him he was a coward, etc. GRAHAM asked him if that was his opinion of him. The witness said it was. GRAHAM then said he would settle with him as soon as he got through with TOLEDANO. The witness then left, and shortly after saw TOLEDANO, to whom he related the conversation he had with GRAHAM. TOLEDANO asked him if he thought GRAHAM would attack. The witness told TOLEDANO he was satisfied that was GRAHAM's determination. A few minutes after, the shooting took place.

Mr. PATTERSON testified that Mr. HITZELBERGER told him he had heard that GRAHAM threatened to shoot TOLEDANO like a dog when he met him. The witness walked down St. Charles-street with HITZELBERGER; stopped at the corner of Gravier, and in a minute or two after saw TOLEDANO approach; witness and HITZELBERGER went to TOLEDANO and informed him of the threats made by GRAHAM, and gave him advice about preparing himself. HITZELBERGER and TOLEDANO a little while after went into KITTRIDGE's and there purchased a pistol, while witness and Col. HENRY remained outside.

Mr. HITZELBERGER corroborated Mr. PATTERSON's statement, except that it was not a pistol but bullets that TOLEDANO bought at KITTRIDGE's.

Mr. MONROE testified that while he and some friends were standing at the corner of St. Charles-street and Commercial-alley, Dr. GRAHAM approached, and after shaking hands with him, commenced talking about TOLEDANO; said he would shoot him like a dog, and then abused Dr. HART and all the Aldermen who voted for his election. GRAHAM then called witness a d——n scoundrel, and made a motion to assault him with a pistol, but was prevented by Col. FIELD, who led him away.

Mr. DEJEAN testified that Dr. GRAHAM on Monday evening was in his store with two gentlemen, one of whom had a revolver reloaded. GRAHAM pulled out a Derringer, and said that was the last supper TOLEDANO would ever eat. The witness repeated the violent and profane language of Dr. GRAHAM, which it is unnecessary to reproduce here.

Col. HENRY testified that he was with Dr. GRAHAM on Sunday night; that he told him he was going to shoot that d—d scoundrel TOLEDANO. GRAHAM brought the witness to several places to look for TOLEDANO. Three times GRAHAM drew weapons, a pistol twice and a bowie-knife once, to attack persons whom he thought were TOLEDANO.

Other testimony was offered, but not entirely relevant. The Jury retired, and after about fifteen minutes' deliberation, rendered a verdict that Dr. GRAHAM died of wounds inflicted by ERNEST TOLEDANO in self-defence.

A FURTHER EXAMINATION TO BE MADE.

On Thursday, the 22d, the prisoner was brought to the First District Recorder's Court. Mr. BRIGHT, counsel for Mr. TOLEDANO, moved that his client be discharged, as the verdict of the Coroner's Jury showed that Mr. TOLEDANO acted in self-defence when he inflicted the wounds of which Dr. GRAHAM died.

The Recorder said he had been informed that there was a probability of an affidavit being made against Mr. TOLEDANO, as he understood the friends of the deceased were not satisfied with the verdict of the jury of inquest.

Some time after, the Chief of Police appeared in Court, and after some conversation with the Recorder, the latter intimated to the prisoner that Mr. WATERMAN, though personally satisfied that Mr. TOLEDANO's action was justifiable, desired a further investigation, where both parties would be legally and properly represented. The investigation was not claimed for the purpose of persecuting Mr. TOLEDANO, but for the benefit of the community. In the meantime Mr. TOLEDANO would be admitted to bail upon giving a bond of $1,000. Mr. TOLEDANO gave the required bail, and was released.

INTERNATIONAL CRICKET.

Second Day of the Match at Montreal—Success of the Transatlantic Players—Scene on the Ground on Monday—Wednesday's Play suspended by the Rain.

From Our Special Correspondent.

MONTREAL, Monday, Sept. 26.

As I informed you in my last, the All England Eleven took the bat on Saturday evening, sending Wisden and Grundy to the bowling of Hardinge and Fisher; Wisden faced Hardinge in the first over. The field was placed admirably by Mr. Pickering, the Captain of the Twenty-two; himself being an excellent wicket-keeper, Lieut. Surman a fine longstop, Hardinge and Fisher fast round-arm bowlers and well on the wicket, with Napier medium pace, and J. U. Smith fast, for a change of bowling. Wisden slipped one from Hardinge, Grundy facing the same bowler and playing a leg-ball to mid-wicket, on for one run. This broke the ice, for it was a question in the minds of numbers how any runs could be made through the crowd in the field, so well placed as it was. Grundy cut the ball for one from Fisher, and changed ends, facing Hardinge on the next over, showing a specimen of his style in playing off the first three balls, the fourth going from his leg-pad into his wicket. A burst of cheers took place in various parts of the ground, which was promptly suppressed as discourteous to the vanquished cricketer, and Hayward came in, and some pretty cricketing was seen during the next five overs, before time was called, during which every ball was played, and Wisden made a draw for two, a one to short-leg, and Hayward one to send wicket off. On Monday morning Hardinge began with two wides, and Hayward got a three to leg in fine style, and a two to midor, and one to long-leg, on the next over, and a bye. Wisden followed with a hit to long-leg for two, and run a bye; and immediately after gave a chance to Morgan in the slip, from Fisher's bowling, which was not taken, and he scored one—Hayward making a drive for two to the long-field on; and shortly after Wisden was driven back on his wicket by a bailer which glanced off his glove to Hardinge—in the slip—who held it. It was a very pretty catch. Caffyn now joined Hayward, and for some time an exciting time was had. Many attempts at heavy hits at leg-balls taking place, three singles were got through the fielders, when Hayward got away a long-leg for four, and another for two—both from Fisher—and made a safe poke for one to the long-field on, and called Caffyn for the run. He stayed at home. Before Hayward could return, the ball was well thrown in by Capt. Earle to Mr. Pickering, and Hayward retired to the tent, with seventeen to his name. Parr now joined Caffyn, and all became excitement and expectation to the two great batsmen of the age, and every one was soon satisfied with their performance, for during next the twenty overs there was a masterly display of batting and defence.

Nor was the fielding to be passed by without praise; the wicket-keeping of Mr. Pickering being very effective, as was the long-stopping of Capt. Surman. The stips and points were well taken care of. The fielding at the off-side for Fisher's bowling was rather slow, and runs were made in consequence. Caffyn was also missed by Hardinge, and was finally bowled by Fisher, his score consisting of a four, a three, three twos and singles. Cæsar joined Parr, and, before scoring a run, he was bowled by Fisher, and Parr was soon after missed at square-leg by Capt. King. Cæsar came in but did not score anything, as he was bowled by Fisher, the ball going into his wicket off his bat. Diver joined Parr, and the two were some time together, showing fine cricket. At length a ball from Fisher took his middle stump, and he retired amidst cheers for six threes and singles, making a total of twenty-four, finely played for all round. Numbers of the balls played ought to have gone for runs. In a last active field he made amongst other fine hits a cut over caver-point. John Lillywhite next took the willow, and joined Diver, when some very spirited play took place, every movement showing the masters in the art of Cricket. Diver was at length prettily caught at the wicket by Mr. Pickering, from Mr. Fisher having only scored three singles, and soon after Lillywhite was bowled by Napier for only four singles, leaving Lockyer and Stephenson at the wickets. Stephenson did not stay long, giving place to Jackson, the last man of the Eleven. For a long time these fine players kept the ball and fielders in motion by fine play all round—Lockyer's play being particularly brilliant. Jackson at length lost his wicket—on a change of bowling—by a shooter from J. U. Smith. His figures were two doubles and singles, leaving Lockyer to bring out his bat for nineteen, consisting of a three to square-leg, two twos to long-leg a cut for two, and singles all round the ground. The innings, with byes, &c., footed up one hundred and seventeen. The Canadians went in for their second innings with bad success. I do not send the score, as you will get it, with some brief remarks, by the telegraph. Nor do I give the details of the part of the innings of the Twenty-two until to-morrow, when the match will be finished. The twelve English Cricketers will separate. The All-England six choosing five gentlemen, and the United All-England eleven choosing five others.

They will play a match on the same cricket ground on Wednesday,—it being set apart by the members of the Montreal Club for their benefit. The weather has been really lovely, the balmy air and sunshine has had the effect of bringing on the ground upwards of 6,000 persons, amongst whom were the élite of Montreal society: Gen. Sir William Fenwick Williams, of Kars, and his staff, were present on both days. To-day, a grand array of fashion and beauty was added, and the scene was gorgeous, the most brilliant colors vieing with the rich autumnal foliage of the maple and other trees.

A liberal deputation of the officers of the Royal Artillery, of the Royal Canadian Rifles, and of the Seventeenth Regiment of Foot, both officers and men, quite a number of the latter decked with Crimean and Indian medals and clasps—some of the heroes having three, some two, and others one, each—assisted. The band of the Seventeenth was also present, and performed many fine pieces of music during the afternoon. A long line of carriages was on the ground, adding to the confusion of the occasion. Nothing can exceed the good feeling and hospitality evinced everywhere to the cricketers yesterday. They were taken to church in the morning, and driven round "the Mountain" in the afternoon. You have the account of the grand dinner. This evening they visited the theatre, by invitation of the enterprising manager, Mr. Buckland, and on the occasion of the benefit of Mr. C. Fisher, a most excellent actor, formerly of the Broadway Theatre.

A most distressing occurrence took place yesterday at Three Rivers. The son of the Governor-General was drowned while bathing. He was a very accomplished young gentleman, but nineteen years of age, and just come over from England, where he had been at one of the Universities.

I mentioned the miserable fare provided on Saturday; the Montreal papers having noticed it, an amendment took place to-day. Good for the Montreal Press.

TEMPORARY SUSPENSION OF THE PLAY.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]

MONTREAL, Wednesday, Sept. 28.

It has been raining nearly all day. The cricketers went to the ground, but were unable to proceed with the match. The barometer is rising rapidly, and the match goes on to-morrow. Great interest is exhibited in the affair.

A correction should be made in yesterday's report. The footing of both innings of the

ISTHMUS OF PANAMA.

Arrival of the Northern Light—Advices Two Days Later—The Gold Diggings—Survey of the Isthmus for an Interoceanic Canal by the United States Ship Preble—Trouble with the British at San Juan del Norte—The New British and United States Ministers to Central America—The Revolution at Carthagena—Miscellaneous News.

The steamship Northern Light, from Aspinwall on the 20th inst., arrived at this port yesterday morning.

The advices from the Isthmus are two days later than those brought by the Moses Taylor.

Professor DIMITRY, the new Minister to Central America, arrived out in the Northern Light on the 13th. He passed over to Panama on the morning of the 16th, and embarked the same day on board the new Panama Railroad steamer Guatemala, for Central America.

The revolution in Carthagena is reported to be gaining ground.

The Chiriqui gold excitement is considerably abated.

Our Aspinwall Correspondence.

ASPINWALL, NEW-GRANADA, Monday, Sept. 19, 1859.

I understand that the U. S. ship Preble has been detailed by the Secretary of the Navy for an examination of the isthums between the small Bay of Caledonia, on the Caribbean Sea, and the Gulf of San Miguel, on the Pacific Coast, to ascertain the practicability of the country for the construction of an Interoceanic Canal. The point of disembarkation will be from some point in the Bay of Caledonia, probably at, or near, Porto Escoces. The expedition is to consist of a party of volunteers from the officers and crew of the Preble, and is to be accompanied by several civilians, who are expected out from New-York, and who will probably arrive by the Moses Taylor, or the succeeding steamer. It will be commanded by the senior officer volunteering, and I am advised that there will be no difficulty in organizing and proceeding upon such an expedition from the Preble, provided the gentlemen coming out are amply provided with the requisite funds to meet all the expenses incident thereto. Provisions, instruments, tents, &c., will have to be carried upon the backs of men, natives of the couutry; for it would be impossible to penetrate the tropical growth with animals. You may be assured of one thing, the naval officers will not undertake such an expedition unless it is properly fitted out in all its details, and with some guarantee of success. They well remember the unfortunate expedition of poor STRAIN. Yet brave and daring officers and men will be found on board the Preble who are willing to risk health and even life in any honorable undertaking. The expedition being purely a private affair, it is understood that the United Stater will not bear any of the expenses, merely furnshing tents, instruments, arms, ammunition, &c.

I learn that, there being an urgent necessity for communicating with the Senior United States Naval Officer off San Juan del Norte, (Capt. ADAMS, commanding the frigate Sabine,) and the Flag-officer of our Home Squadron not having a small steamer to perform such service, the Preble was sent there with dispatches, leaving Aspinwall on the 7th inst., and she was expected to return immediately. It appears, from information derived from my correspondent at San Juan del Norte, that the English naval officers there are disposed to interfere in some way with vessels under the American flag, and their passengers, which may get into the harbor without being boarded from an American ship-of-war; in other words, they intend to revive the "Protectorate" of that harbor and coast. I thought that the McIntosh-Aldham correspondence settled that point, when the steamer Washington was boarded and examined within the harbor by British naval officers from the Valorous, after the Washington had been thoroughly overhauled outside by the boarding Lieutenant from the United States frigate Savannah, and allowed to enter the harbor. You well recollect how promptly and successfully MCINTOSH handled that subject, and how his course met with the approval of his Government and countrymen. I am fully satisfied, from the well-known high character and standing of his successor, MCCLUNEY—than whom a more prompt and efficient officer cannot be found in any service—will not be one whit behind MCINTOSH in any required action on such premises. Therefore, I feel assured that his instructions to the Senior United States Naval Officer at San Juan will meet the question by giving notice to the British naval officers that no interferenee whatever on their part, within the harbor of San Juan, or upon the waters adjacent thereto, will be allowed by our officers; and that our officers will be ordered to enforce, if necessary, this instruction.

Why, in the name of common sense, does not the Government of the United States settled this "vexed" question with the British Government, and not let the burden of responsibility in meeting it rest upon the Commander-in-chief of its Home Squadron. If needs be, that officer will surely meet it. Sir WM. GORE OUSELEY informed several persons, when he passed through here upon his mission to Central America, that he would have that, and all other Central American questions, arranged by the 1st of March, A. D. 1859! What has he done? Why, Sir WM. exceeded his instructions; the Home Government repudiated his action, giving him new instructions; and matters are, apparently, as far from being adjusted as they were before Sir WM. went to Central America upon his benevolent mission. We all know that it has been the policy of Great Britain to keep Central American affairs an open question, in spite of her pledged faith to the United States under the provisions of the "Clayton-Bulwer Convention." She will never settle it so long as she can keep it open, notwithstanding President BUCHANAN's belief in the objects and anticipated beneficial results from the mission of Sir WM. GORE OUSELEY, and which so cordially met Mr. BUCHANAN's "entire approbation." The Mosquito Coast Territory continues to be the "Gordian-knot:" sever it, and all difficulties and petty annoyances to our citizens and commerce at San Juan del Norte, by officers of Her Britannic Majesty's civil and naval forces, will immediately cease, and not until then.

In an editorial article of the Illustrated London News, of Aug. 13, 1859, my attention was attracted to an expression contained in the one headed, "The Sovereignty of the Seas." It is therein stated; "'This country' (Great Britain) desires to make no 'European conquests.'" No European conquests! Where then does she desire to make them? She undoubtedly seeks an American passage, (and by conquest, too, if necessary to carry out her designs,) to her Northwestern, Asiatic and Australian colonies; and the time is not far distant, perhaps, when France will be found in alliance with her upon that point. This Isthmus of Panama is the object of Great Britain's covetousness; and as it daily grows in importance to our countrymen and their commercial interests, our people should lose no time, and unitedly take the advanced and bold position, that it shall never be possessed by European powers to our seclusion. A new impetus has already been given to the business and prospects of the railroad across the Isthmus, constructed by the untiring energy and immense capital of our enterprizing countrymen, by the placing upon the route, between New-York and Aspinwall, the magnificent steamers Baltic and Atlantic; and there can be no question that the mails and specie will continue to go over this, the only reliable route to and from California.

Great satisfaction has been expressed that Capt. A. G. GRAY has been selected to command the Baltic, which vessel is to be the pioneer of the new line.

The Royal West India Mail steamer Trent, with the European mails to the 17th ult., arrived at Aspinwall at 6 A. M. on the 12th inst. Among her passengers were: Mr. CHARLES LENNOX WYKE, the newly appointed British Minister to succeed Sir WM. GORE OUSELEY in the mission to Central America, and Mr. EDEN, Secretary, in place of Mr. SYNGE. Mr. WYKE was formerly H. B. M.'s Consul-General for Central America, and he and his Secretary left here on the Panama Railroad Company's steamer Guatemala, on the 16th inst., for their destination.

Mr. DIMITRY, the Buchanan appointee as United States Minister to Nicaragua, and his family, arrived at Aspinwall in the steamer Northern Light on the afternoon of the 13th inst., and also went up on the Guatemala. Mr. D. was received on board the flag-ship Roanoke, at Aspinwall, on the morning of the 14th, with the customary honors to Ministers of the United States.

The revolution at Carthagena is still progressing, and the United States ship St. Louis, which vessel was dispatched there by Flag-Officer MCCLUNEY to protect the persons and property of foreign residents, is necessitated to remain there as affairs were in a very unsatisfactory and unsafe condition by recent reports. I learn that one Flag-Officer at Aspinwall has received a memorial from the foreign Consuls and residents of foreign nations, to continue the St. Louis at Carthagena, or to let her remain until she can be relieved by some other U. S. vessel-of-war. The memorial represents that the Consulates and foreign residents are entirely at the mercy of a lawless soldiery, and, in the absence of some protecting power, they would, no doubt, be sacked and maltreated, in case the revolutionary party, now in possession of the city, should be forced from their position.

The Sabine, Capt. ADAMS, and Jamestown, Com. KENNEDY, and the Preble, Com. JENKINS, are at present on the Coast of Nicaragua. The Jamestown is shortly expected to arrive at Aspinwall, as she is entirely out of provisions, and the Preble is soon to return to prepare for her expedition. The flag-ship Roanoke is at Aspinwall, under orders from the Secretary of the Navy to receive on board the Japanese Commissioners, (expected for three preceding weary months to arrive) and to convey them to New-York.

LAW REPORTS.

DECISION IN ADMIRALTY.

Damage to Cargo—Duty of Master.

UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT—Sept. 28.

Before Judge Nelson.

John Denbreens et al. vs. John J. Lawrence, John J. Lawrence vs. The Brig Lieutenant-Admiral Collomberg.—NELSON, C. J.—The first of these suits was brought to recover freight on a shipment of fruit from Palermo to New-York in the brig. The second was a cross suit by the consignee to recover for damages to the fruit in the course of the voyage. The bill of lading contained the usual exceptions of dangers of the sea, &c., and also of liability to inherent decay. The brig sailed from Palermo on the 16th December, 1855, and arrived at New-York on May 20, 1856, after a passage of over 70 days. She encountered a storm on her voyage and was compelled to bear away to the port of Lisbon, in Portugal, for repairs, where she was detained some 47 days in refitting, and where a survey of a portion of the fruit which was perishable (700 boxes of lemons and 2,150 boxes of oranges) was directed, and which were all discharged from the ship and placed in a well-ventilated warehouse on shore. The boxes were opened and examined and the fruit found to be decaying. The unsound were separated from the sound, and then repacked with care—a quantity equal to 414 boxes of the lemons and oranges were found to be so far decayed as to be worthless—the greater proportion oranges. On the arrival of the ship at this port almost the whole of this fruit was in a very damaged condition.

It is not denied on the part of the counsel for the consignee but that the damage was occasioned by the natural and inherent decay of the article, but it is insisted that the fault of the master in the course of the voyage contributed to this damage.

1. It is insisted that the length of time occupied in making the repairs at Lisbon was unnecessary and unreasonable, and that this delay was occasioned by the carelessness and want of energy and activity of the master, and that it contributed to the damage to the fruit; and,

2. That the opening of the boxes of fruit at Lisbon, and the handling of it, in separating the sound from the unsound, and repacking the same, had a tendency to increase the decay of the article, and manifested a want of proper skill in taking care of the fruit in the course of the shipment, and contributed to the damage.

The Court below overruled these positions and held upon the proofs that the master had not been guilty of any culpable omission of duty on the voyage which caused the loss or deterioration of the fruit, and that the delay of the vessel in Lisbon, where she put in for repairs, beyond the time reasonably required to obtain them, was not the immediate or proximate cause of the injuries the fruit had sustained, and that it being proved that the efforts of the master in Lisbon to preserve the fruit were made in good faith and under the advice of experienced and competent persons, and according to the best judgment of the master, the vessel was not responsible for the injuries the fruit received, even if the means used to save it were not the most suitable and well judged; that the master was quasi the agent of both parties in respect to the cargo found in a perishing condition on board of his ship, and his acts honestly put forth in the emergency with intent to the best interests of all concerned are to be indulgently considered.

We have looked into the evidence in the case, and although it is conuradictory, and in respect to the time consumed in the repairs at Lisbon, not very satisfactory, we think the weight of it sustains the views of the Court below. We admit it is difficult to understand or believe that some seven weeks should be consumed at Lisbon in refitting the vessel, when the work could have been done in this port in as many days. But the evidence returned on the commission executed in Lisbon explained it fully, not, however, in a manner very creditable to the character or enterprise of the shipmasters of that port, or to the commercial enterprise of the Government of Portugal.

We are satisfied that the decrees of the Court below are right, and should be affirmed.

For appellants, Messrs. Beebe, Dean, and Donohue; for respondents, Messrs. Owen and Vose.

ELLA BURNS' CASE.

Mrs. Ellet Cross-Examined—Other Testimony—Mrs. Burns' Story.

In the Matter of the Petition of Francis Whitten.—The Court-room this morning presented a lively appearance. A fair array of crinoline, to say nothing of gentle-looking countenances, enlivened the Court-room, and presented a pleasing contrast to the general austerity of legal proceedings.

Mrs. Burns, a rather amiable-looking lady, sat by her counsel, Mr. Larocque.

The first witness was Mrs. Frances Ellet, the substance of whose affidavit, read before, was stated in our yesterday's report. She was now called and submitted to a cross-examination, which elicited little of additional interest.

Mr. Pretto was then sworn, and testified: I and Mrs. Burns boarded at Mrs. Dorr's between June and March of 1858; she was there five or six weeks; I was absent from home from ten to five; I occupied the front room on second floor; the back room on second floor was occupied by Mrs. Burns; large closets were between the rooms, and a passage-way between, leading from one room to the other; Mrs. Burns and child were in her room when I heard her directing her as to her attitude when mounting the steps, and heard her recite when in my room; this was in the Winter; the child complained of headache while in the parlor, on several occasions; I judge that the child was delicate; from the appearance of the child she is better now than then.

Cross-examined by Mr. Ashmead—My wife is now out of town; she went early this morning.

By Mr. Larocque—Mr. Whitton called at my house last night, but my wife had engaged to go before he called.

Mr. Ashmead rested the case here.

Mr. Larocque opened for the defence. He called attention to the fact that the making of the indenture was admitted, and to the technical character of the objections raised to avoid it. He contended that the instrument was properly recorded, and referred to the statutes of Ohio, in support of this point, and also to two cases in Ohio, in which he said it had been decided that the indenture was not invalid because not recorded. He argued that the evidence showed that the training of the child, and its removal from the State, was consented to by the father, and that it was plain that the action was originated by other parties than the father himself, and so far from the child being badly treated, no mother was ever more kind to a child of her own bearing, than this Mrs. Burns herself; and so far from being tasked by rehearsals, and being exposed to publicity upon the boards of the stage, the utmost pains had been used that neither its mind or its body should be tasked. Mrs. Burns had been engaged in raising funds to educate the child, and entertained an affection for the child, and was animated by principles which her opponents could not appreciate. She took the child when two years old, for the purpose of bringing it up as a mother, and without any knowledge of its extraordinary talent.

Mr. Ezekiel J. Moore was then examined on behalf of the respondents. He had resided several months in the family of Mrs. Burns, and swore to the kindness, liberality, and judicious gentleness of the treatment Ella received from Mrs. Burns.

Dr. Gardner was then called.—Have been a practicing physician for 16 or 19 years; knows the child, Ella Burns; have seen her repeatedly since the Fall of 1858; was present at a few private exhibtions of the child, and when at the Academy, at those times, she was physically better than ordinary City children, and mentally superior; she was in perfect health; has not, in my opinion, been over-tasked; believe there is nothing in the training of the child to impair its health.

Miss Jane Wood was then examined—I reside at the Hamilton House; Mrs. Burns and Ella formerly resided with me at No. 50 East Fifteenth-street from November, 1858 to April, 1859; the treatment of the child was good while at my house; some days the child did not read at all, and when she did she was usually occupied twenty minutes or half an hour, and this was all that was required for preparing for reading in the evening; the child was very affectionate towards Mrs. Burns; she had food whenever she wanted it, and generally slept between the hours of two and four o'clock.

Mrs. Degraw, residing at No. 166 East Fourteenth-street, gave testimony similar in import to that of Mrs. Wood.

Judge Edmonds examined—Had been consulted by Mrs. Burns in regard to the child, and had recommended her to be placed at the Academy of the Sacred Heart; this was a fortnight ago.

Mrs. Edmonds corroborated the statement of ex-Judge Edmonds.

Mrs. Burns, the respondent, was then sworn. She testified: The indentures were executed on the 13th August, 1856; I was then a resident of California; I saw Mr. Whitten shortly before the indentures were executed, to see about taking the child; I heard of the child through a woman that worked for her sister; Mr. Whitten stated to me that he wished to get a place for his child, and referred me to his daughter; he made no inquiries as to my residence; I made a proposition to him to take his child for a time on trial; and he might see I used her as he would like to have her used; if not, he could reclaim her; he said if I did not sign the papers that evening I could not have her, and I accordingly signed the papers; she was then in a comfortable condition, comfortably dressed, &c.; I remained until Dec. 17, and then came to New-York, and sailed on the 20th inst.; neither the father nor his daughter ever came to see the child after I took the child, and while I remained in Cincinnati I talked with them, and they knew of my going to California; I was married in California, and returned in April of 1857 and went to Cincinnati, and had Ellen with me; I must have been there about a year before seeing Mr. Whitten; I went to him; he did not come to see me; he did not recollect me, and I was obliged to introduce myself; I told him if he would give me $1,500, my expenses, he might have the child, as I heard he wanted her; I should have gone mad if he had accepted the offer; I relied upon his not having the means, and I knew if he had he would not spend so much for a child; he told me that I had been wrongly informed; he did not wish the child; at that time the child had not exhibited extraordinary talents; he made no objections because I had taken the child out of the State, or because the child had given public exhibitions; saw Mr. Whitten once or twice a day while I remained there, which was a few weeks; he did not, while I was there, object, or forbid the child's being removed from the State; I visited Ohio again about three weeks afterwards, and Mr. Whitten never, at any time or place, objected to my taking her out of the State, nor ever objected to her exhibiting at the theatre, and even went to the National Theatre to make an engagement for her, and returned and told me there was no vacancy; I recollect the visit of the men to her sister's house; Whitten and two other men came to her house; nothing was then said about process; they said they came for the child, and would not leave until they got her; this was the first information he ever gave me that he wanted it; had no knowledge at that time of any process having been issued; they conducted quietly; they searched the house for her, and I sent the servants to the neighbors and to my cousin, and they came and took her out of the window, supposing the men had come to take the child by force; Mr. Whitten then represented himself as a member of the police; I then left Cincinnati for Cleveland, and then went to Niagara; this was about the month of July last; since my return to New-York I have resided at the Metropolitan Hotel, the St. Nicholas Hotel, Mrs. Dorr's, and No. 47 Bond-street, No. 15 East Thirteenth-street, and No. 199 Tenth-street; I first knew Mrs. Ellet when she came and introduced herself to me at Clinton Hall. Witness then gave some account of her treatment of the child, and said she never had occasion to punish her as the relator alleged she had done. She always, she said, prepared its food, and it disliked to have its food prepared by others.

The cause was adjourned to this morning.

The West Washington Market Case.

Yesterday morning the Court-room of the Supreme Court Circuit was crowded again by a concourse of spectators greatly interested in the proceedings. Mr. Henriquez, a Jew, who was sworn as juror on Tuesday, was excused, as to-day is a festival day of his people, and it was against his conscience to do any business on that day. The impanneling of the jury was then proceeded with, and one being finally obtained, the case for the plaintiff was opened by Mr. E. W. Stoughton, who placed Supervisor Kennedy on the stand. Mr. Kennedy's testimony was historical and traditional in its nature, and occupied the remainder of the day.

THE WOOL TRADE.

DOMESTIC MARKETS.

In New-York, during the past week, a good inquiry has prevailed for Wool, especially for Domestic, which has attracted more attention from manufacturers. Holders have not exhibited any disposition to press their supplies on the market. Prices have been well supported, and the tendency has been, in the main, favorable to sellers. The remarkable success of the late public sales of Wool at London, resulting, as we have already reported, in the disposal of an unusually large catalogue at very satisfactory prices, has given much encouragement to holders. Receipts have been fair this week amounting to 2,805 bales Domestic, of which 1,798 bales arrived on the 26th inst., in the ship Lookout, from San Francisco. This quantity of California Wool, though not yet available, adds considerably to the stock here. As this description, however, has met with unusual favor of late, it is likely to be all required to satisfy the anticipated wants of purchasers. In addition to the arrivals from San Francisco, the week's receipts of Domestic included 379 bales by the Erie Railroad; 107 bales by the Hudson River Railroad; 1 bale by the North River boats; 221 bales coastwise from Philadelphia; 23 bales from Boston; 3 bales from Baltimore; 2 bales from Richmond; 4 pkgs. from Charleston; 8 bales from Savannah; 1 bale from St. Mark's, Florida; 95 bales from Mobile, and 145 bales from New-Orleans. The total reported imports of Foreign Wool, during the week, have been only 17 bales, including 13 bales from Curaçoa, and 4 bales from Kingston, Jam. The following is a comparative statement of the total receipts of Wool at this port during the last four weeks, as reported by us from week to week:

Week ending	Sept. 7.	Sept. 14.	Sept 21.	Sept. 28.
Domestic, bales	1,071	691	2,786	2,805
Foreign, bales	199	511	622	17
Total, bales	1,270	1,202	3,408	2,822

Grand total in four weeks, bales.....8,702

Domestic Pulled within a range of from 30c.@50c. for low No. 1 to choice extra; 120 bales Texas, in lots, part at 23c.@35c.; 870 bales California, part medium unwashed to very good washed Fleece, at 20c.@35c.; 65 bales unwashed Mexican, part at 13c.@15c.; 162 bales Mestizo, part fine unwashed, at 26c.; 80 bales Rio Grande on private terms; 45 bales washed Cordova, part at 20c.@22c.; 30 bales unwashed medium Spanish Fleece on private terms; 30 bales fine Smyrna washed, also on private terms 20 bales fine washed white Donskoi at 21c.; 70 bales Persian on private terms; 55 bales low Cape at 33c; and sundry small lots of Buenos Ayres and Entre Rios at irregular, but, in general, very full prices.....In Boston, during the week, with a lively demand, prices have advanced 1@2c. ℔ lb., and sales have been effected of 250,000 lbs. Domestic, chiefly at 52c.@55c. for Fleece, and 42c.@57c. for Superfine to Extra Pulled; 985 bales Cape and fine Mestizo, 937 bales Mediterranean, Cape and S. American, 500 bales Syrian and 300 ballots Peruvian....The total arrivals of Wool at Boston from Jan. 1 to Sept. 18, this year, reached 34,728 bales Domestic, and 35,525 bales Foreign, against 24,238 bales Domestic, and 13,147 bales Foreign same time in 1858....In Providence, sales have been made of 55,000 lbs. Domestic Fleece at 30c.@56c.; 14,000 lbs. Domestic Pulled at 38c.@52½c.; and 8,000 lbs. Foreign at from 26c.@38c. ℔ lb.....In Troy, N.Y., sales have been made of 75,000 lbs. Domestic Fleece and Pulled at very full and rising prices....In Philadelphia, large sales having reduced the available supplies materially, holders have exhibited increased firmness. Sales have been reported of 160,000 lbs. Domestic, including 20,500 lbs. extra fine at 60c., 50,000 do. fine at 58c.@60c., 4,000 do. full blood at 55c., 8,000 do. ⅜@¾ blood at 48c.@50c., 40,000 do. mixed and fine at 45c.@60c., 4,000 do. common at 40c.@42c., 3,000 do. tub at 39c.@39½c., 2,000 do. pulled at 37c.@38c., cash....The Baltimore accounts have not varied, in spirit or tendency, for several weeks past. If we are to judge by the stereotype reports in some of the Baltimore newpapers, the Wool Trade in the Monumental City is always dull and always unchanged....St. Louis advices report large receipts of Mexican, which have been mainly stored or forwarded direct. 80,000 lbs. changed hands on private terms.

FOREIGN MARKETS.

The Vanderbilt brought us advices from England to the 15th inst. In London, the demand for Wool, especially for English and Scotch, had improved since the conclusion of the public sales, and prices generally had been well sustained. The stock in the hands of manufacturers were limited, and the prospect of the market was good, although the new clip had turned out very large....In Liverpool a fair demand prevailed, and prices of Foreign favored sellers....At the annual September Wool Fair, at Bristol, held on the 7th and 8th inst., the attendance was large, and the offering in excess of that of last year. Teggs were much sought after, and brought 17d.@20d. ℔ lb.; ewes, owing to the high prices asked, were not so much in demand, and the lots varied from 14d.@19d. ℔ lb., according to the sorts; combing skins were scarce, and held for 16d.@18d. Clothing skin wools—broadheads, 9d.@10½d.; fine heads, 14d.@15d.; supers, 15d@17½d.; Skin Lambs, 13d.@17d....In the various other Provincial Markets, business was rather tame, but was improving a little....From Berlin, in relation to the German Wool Trade, our accounts are to the beginning of September. During the earlier part of the month of August the same briskness prevailed as in the preceding month, simply with the difference, that inland manufacturers were the principal buyers, whilst comparatively little was purchased for export. The reports of the animation which prevailed at the London sales had its influence upon the markets, and encouraged buyers. In the latter part of the month business became quiet, and, in addition to the manufacturers, only a few buyers for the Rhine country were busy in the warehouses. Prices remain very firm, and they were as high as last year. Our East Prussian Wools were mostly in, and offered a good selection. The Lambs' Wool came into the market since the beginning of the month; it was generally bad grown and in bad condition. The clean, bright Lambs' Wools of last year were entirely missed. The demand for this article was very good, and almost every bag which came to the market found ready takers. Prices were, notwithstanding the condition, high, particularly so for the better and cleaner Wools. The quantity produced this year was less than in former years. Average lots sold at 82@83 r. d. ℔ cwt.; better Wools at 85@95 r. d. ℔ cwt., and fine Lambs' Wools above 100 r. d. ℔ cwt. Most of the Wools were purchased for the English market. Sliped Wools were rather neglected, but were in good demand toward the close. Prices, 63@72 r. d.; for very fine sliped, 75 r. d. ℔ cwt. generally asked.

BARTON & STOCKER remark: "Notwithstanding the limited demand, and the fact that buyers are by no means eager at current rates, holders generally have retained their firmness, and no transactions are reported tending to show anything like a decline. The light stock at most of the Southern ports of shipment, lately referred to, and the pretensions of holders there are regarded as favorable indications by receivers here—while the fact that most of the stock now in our market was shipped from Wilmington, at prices so high as to render sales, at present figures, anything but profitable, makes them indifferent sellers. The export demand at the moment is quite limited, although a considerable quantity could be placed at a slight concession." Tar has been in good request at uniform prices. NEW PUBLICATIONS.

PUBLISHED SATURDAY, OCT. 1:
THE EMPIRE OF RUSSIA,
FROM THE REMOTEST PERIODS TO THE PRESENT TIME.
BY JOHN S. C. ABBOTT.
With a Portrait on steel of Peter the Great.
Crown 8vo., 528 pages. Cloth. Price $1 50.

This is the second of the series of the HISTORIES OF THE MONARCHIES OF CONTINENTAL EUROPE. The books are prepared on a novel plan, eminently fitted to enhance their attractiveness and permanent value. The author in his preface says:

"The world is now too busy to read voluminous history. The interminable details of battles and the petty intrigues of courtiers and mistresses have lost their interest. In this volume it has been our object to trace perspicuously the path which Russia has trod from earliest infancy to the present hour. The career of this Empire has been so wild and wonderful that the historian can have no occasion to call in the aid of fancy for the embellishment of his narrative. * * In writing these Histories of the Monarchies of Continental Europe, the author has no wish to conceal his abhorrence of aristocratic usurpation. Believing in the universal brotherhood of man, his sympathies are most cordially with the oppressed masses. If the people are weak and debased, the claim is only the more urgent upon the powerful and wise to act the part of elder brothers—holding out the helping hand to those who have fallen. The author feels grateful for the reception which the first number of this series, 'The Empire of Austria,' has received from the American public. He hopes that this volume will not prove less interesting or instructive."

NEWS OF THE DAY.

The steamship Northern Light, from Aspinwall on the 20th September, arrived at this port yesterday morning. Her advices, which are two days later than those of the Moses Taylor, are unimportant. Our Aspinwall correspondent furnishes a summary of the news.

Official dispatches have been received in Washington, giving detailed accounts of recent occurrences in China, including the engagement on the Peiho River between the English and French and the Chinese, and the part taken by the American naval forces in the affair. Capt. Tatnall, flag-officer, on being informed that the British Admiral had been wounded, went in his barge to visit him, and when within a few feet of the Admiral's vessel, a round-shot struck his boat, killing the coxswain, Mr. Hart, of Brooklyn, and wounding Lieut. Trenchard. Capt. Tatnall writes that Mr. Ward, the American Commissioner, had been requested by the Chinese Commissioners to accompany the British and French Ministers to the Peiho, but that he had reason to doubt the sincerity of the Commissioners, though at the time he consented to the arrangement.

The Convention of the friends of the Canals assembled at Utica yesterday, about two hundred Delegates being present. The morning session was principally devoted to preliminary matters, including the appointment of a Committee on business and resolutions. During the afternoon session the Committee reported a series of six resolutions, the first of which, advocating the system of tolling the railroads, was laid over, but subsequently, during the evening session, it was adopted. The other five, generally setting forth the policy of the friends of the Canals, were adopted without any opposition of moment. A resolution declaring it to be inexpedient to indicate any preferences among the candidates for State officers now before the people was laid over, and does not appear to have been afterwards acted upon. Provision was made for the appointment of Committees to conduct the Legislative elections.

The New-Orleans papers contain detailed accounts of the shooting of Dr. Robert M. Graham by Mr. Ernest Toledano, a brief telegraphic dispatch in reference to which has been published. Dr. Graham, it appears, had been superseded as city physician, and challenged Toledano, who was the Know-Nothing candidate for Clerk of one of the District Courts, as one of the parties instigating his removal; but the challenge was declined. The affray took place in the Ruby Saloon, where they accidentally met Graham thrust his hand into the breast of his coat, as if to draw a pistol, whereupon Toledano pulled out his revolver and fired every barrel. One bullet struck the wall, and four entered Dr. Graham's right breast, all within a few inches of each other. Dr. Graham rushed out on the banquette, where he staggered half round, and fell into the street on his back. He was immediately picked up and carried into the bar-room, where he soon afterwards expired. The Coroner's investigation established the fact that threats had been repeatedly made against Toledano by Graham, and that the latter had sought for the former with the intention of taking his life. It was also shown that Toledano had been apprised of these threats, and knew that his life was in danger, and that, in consequence, he had prepared himself for the worst. Under the circumstances, the Jury did not hesitate to give a verdict of justifiable homicide.

The gross violations of law in several of the parishes of Louisiana, both by the ordinary outlaws of society and by the Vigilance Committees which have been organized to mete out summary justice to them, have at length become so flagrant as to necessitate the interference of the Executive of the State. Gov. Wickliffe, after issuing a proclamation which he found of no avail, has himself gone to the scene of disorder with a view of aiding, by his presence, in the restoration of peace. Whether himself or his proclamation will accomplish the most, remains to be proved. Meantime, the New-Orleans papers, with one or two exceptions, denounce the proceedings of the regulators.

A very brief dispatch from Albion, in this State, announces the terrible fact that during the continuance of the Orleans County Fair in that village, a bridge over the canal, crowded with people, gave way, and precipitated the living mass into the water below. At last accounts eighteen dead bodies had been recovered, and it was believed that many more were in the water, covered by the débris of the fallen bridge. A great number of persons also were injured.

We learn by the arrival of the Overland Mail at St. Louis, that peace has at last been concluded with the Mojave Indians. Major Armistead was the negotiator, and he has succeeded in persuading this dangerous tribe to relinquish its claims to the valley in the immediate vicinity of Fort Mojave. The Indians acknowledge that they have lost a great many warriors in their encounters with the U. S. troops.

The Protestant Episcopal Convention of the Diocese of New-York met yesterday in St. John's Church to transact its annual business. Bishop Potter presided, and, in conducting the religious services with which it is customary to open the deliberations of that body, was assisted by Bishop Scott of Oregon, Bishop Lee of Iowa, and Bishop Upfold of Indiana. The sermon was delivered by the Rev. Dr. Lewis, of Brooklyn, and at 3 o'clock the Convention, having disposed of much business that was in a large measure formal, adjourned until 9 o'clock this morning. Bishop Onderdonk has withdrawn, it is stated, from before the Convention his petition to the House of Bishops, asking for a termination of his [illegible]nce. This does not prevent the calling up of the whole matter, in regular parliamentary form' if any of the delegates see fit to do so.

The Board of Supervisors continued its struggle over the Registrars last evening. The Democrats, notwithstanding the resistance of the Republicans, led on by the dauntless Little, who [illegible]red the wrong inflicted by his absence the night before, with redoubled but baffled energy, carrying all their nominations. At the hour we go to press these indefatigable men still wrestle for the public welfare.

The examination of the witnesses in the case of Ella Burns was continued at great length yesterday, eliciting many details respecting the history of the parties and the treatment of the child. The case will be resumed this morning. A jury having been obtained, the trial of the West Washington Market case was commenced,

The sales of Cotton were 1,000 bales, at about previous prices. Favored by light receipts, reduced supplies and encouraging advices from England by the Circassian, holders of Flour and Wheat were enabled to sell freely at advanced rates. Corn was depressed and lower. Provisions were less sought after. Rio Coffee, Cuba Sugar and Molasses, with Dry Codfish, Pickled Mackerel, Smoked Herring, Hay and Hops, were in fair demand at generally buoyant prices. The public sale of Teas was quite successful, the competition having been vigorous. Prices indicate an improvement of 1c.@2c. ₱ lb. The movements in Hides, Leather, Metals, Oils, Rice, Seeds, Tallow and Tobacco were restricted. The Freight engagements were likewise quite limited. There were 566 vessels of all classes in port.

The Stock market was active yesterday, with quite an interesting competition between the speculators for the rise or fall on the partial change in the Money market. There was finally a recovery in the Western Road shares to 74½ for Galena, and 67½ for Rock Island. The price of New York Central left off the same as the day before, 81⅛. Other sales through the day for cash and on time, of 8,000 shares. Missouri sixes fell a fraction below 84 per cent. Money, to the Brokers, closed in easy supply, at 6@7 per cent. Discounts rather higher on six months bills.

The Live Stock Markets have been largely supplied during the week; the arrivals of beef cattle, especially, have been quite beyond the demand. For the week ending yesterday, the receipts at the regular yards of live animals of all kinds destined for slaughter number 26,186, to wit: 5,517 beef cattle; 850 veal calves; 14,318 sheep and lambs; 5,356 swine. Receipts of milch cows, 145. As compared with last week, this is an increase of 462 beeves and 310 veals, and a decrease of 1,827 sheep and 2,743 swine. Beeves number 1,841 or 50 ₱ cent. more than the weekly average for all of last year. At yesterday's general market for the week, cattle sold at an average of ½c. ₱ lb. below even last week's very low prices—only a small number of the very best bullocks offered were at scarcely 10c. ₱ lb. for the estimated dressed weight, while large numbers sold at 5c.@6c. Even at these rates, which are ruinous to the owners, the yards were not cleared last evening. For milch cows the demand is better, and prices improving a little. Veal calves are rather in excess, especially those too young to be fit to kill. The inspectors of the market should keep a little sharper look-out for meat of this kind. Sheep and lambs sell about as last week, with a full supply on hand. Swine are in fair supply, and prices rather lower.

Law in Utah.

We published, yesterday morning, a communication from our correspondent at Salt Lake City, describing a state of affairs which, we think we may assert without either exaggeration or fear of contradiction, is not to be paralleled by anything to be found within the jurisdiction of any civilized government on the globe. In saying this, we have Algeria, the Punjaub and the Caucasus distinctly before our mind's eye. We take into account the turbulence of the Kabyles, the restless activity of Nena Sahib, the ferocity of the Sikhs, and the cut-throat propensities of the Circassian mountaineers. And yet we assert that the United States possesses inhabited territory, occupied by a competent force of its troops, within a month's march of a frontier inclosing thirty millions of law-abiding citizens, which, for disorder, insecurity, bloodshed, contempt for the law and its officers, beats anything of the kind which either France, England or Russia can produce.

One year and a half ago, Utah was in open rebellion against the United States, a rebellion promoted and headed by the local authorities, and aided in every way by the existing civil organization. The United States troops were attacked, their convoys were cut off and destroyed, their couriers captured and despoiled. United States citizens were brutally murdered when engaged in their lawful business on the United States territory, and its law officers were treated with contumely and insult. In short, there was no overt act of treason of which Brigham Young and his associates had not been guilty. After a great deal of delay and great mismanagement, a force was dispatched to reduce him to subjection, to assert not simply the authority of the Government and maintain its dignity, though these are not trifles, but to assert for every citizen of the United States an unquestionable right—the right of going to the Territory, settling in any part of it, and pursuing his calling in perfect security under the protection of the federal laws.

We know what the result was. Before the army had ever seen their foe, he had been pardoned and restored to favor, and they were thrown into the Territory in the ridiculous plight of warriors who had marched too early and arrived too late.

The proper course for the President to have pursued towards a man of Brigham's pretensions and antecedents, was to have made his pardon dependent on his behavior—to have told him frankly that though he had no immediate intention of putting the law in force against him, it was impossible after what had occurred that everything should go on as if nothing had occurred at all; that the very least which any Government with a particle of self-respect could exact from a gentleman in his position was the mild expiation of future good conduct. For the sake of the people of the Territory, no less than the people of the United States, martial law ought to have been proclaimed, and the Territory have been governed militarily as long as might be necessary to convince the Mormons that there was a Government called the Government of the United States, that it was capable of something more than writing dispatches, and that its pardon was worth having. At the present moment we do not believe there are one hundred Mormons who would not as soon be outlawed by a Proclamation of the President, as sentenced to be bamboozed by the Grand Lama of Thibet.

The result of this remarkable policy is seen in our correspondent's letter. The United States judges, whose authority our army marched to restore, have had it restored—but what an authority! They hold their courts as of yore—but what courts! The nightly orgies in the London "Cider Cellar," presided over by Chief Baron Nicholson, are hardly a greater caricature upon the administration of justice. The United States Marshal could not in a large city find a room for them to sit in, and they were about, as a last resource, to display the ermine in a tent borrowed from a traveling menagerie, when the Marshal of the Territory in contemptuous pity lent to the United States a Mormon "Council House." When the Court is opened, an American citizen, named McNeil brings a civil action against Brigham Young, for having imprisoned him in irons during the Winter of 1857-8, his crime being disapproval of the Mormon rebellion. The suit was hardly commenced when the plaintiff was shot at the door of his boarding-house at 10 o'clock in the evening, in the most public thoroughfare of the city. A negro is indicted for murder. The Jury is locked up as usual, and forthwith writes an insolent letter to the Judge demanding its liberation. The principal witness refuses to appear, is attached, gets leave to wash his face, makes his escape and cannot be re-taken. The trial is therefore postponed. Two Mormons are indicted for forging the drafts of the United States Quartermaster-General. The leading witness writes to the judge, telling him he dares not appear in court, because he knows he would be murdered in the street on leaving it. The judge writes him to place himself under the protection of the United States Marshal, and "then woe betide the man or set of men who dared to interfere with him!"

What this protection was worth, poor Sergeant Pike of the Tenth Infantry had woeful experience. He had to disarm a Mormon who resisted the execution of a lawful order given to the Sergeant by his superior officer. In doing so he injured him slightly, but injured him in defence of his own life as well as in discharge of his duty. He was indicted, he surrendered to take his trial, and was standing at the Court-house door, in the custody of the Marshal, waiting for his case to be called, when he was shot dead by the prosecutor. The deed was done in the presence of a large crowd, and the assassin escaped without molestation. A person named Drown brings an action against a Mormon named Hickman, and obtains judgment. He stays execution on being assured that he will be paid. On that very night the house in which he lodges is attacked by a large armed party, and he is murdered on the spot.

So the record runs to the end. Any man who dares to sue in a United States Court does so at the risk of his life. Mormon juries find verdicts which the judge has to set aside for their absurdity. The Mormon Probate Court insists on trying prisoners for capital offences. Mormon sheriffs torture their gentile prisoners to extract confessions. Mormon witnesses, when subpœnaed, refuse to obey; when attached, make their escape. Any one who can picture to himself a Judge of the Supreme Court administering the common law in Kurdistan, with a body of bashi-bazouks impanneled as a grand jury, and the Court kept by a detachment of Rohilla robbers, has a tolerable idea of what is going on in Utah. Anybody whose fancy is not equal to such a task, may despair of getting an adequate idea of "the situation."

What is to be done, is a question much easier to ask than to answer. Six months of martial law would a year ago have gone far to lay the foundation of order and security. Now that the patient has undergone such doses as the Buchananite amnesty, it is hard to tell how the malady is to be assailed. The position is humiliating for the country in the last degree. We who bide no nation's bearding, are bearded on our own soil by a small horde of ignorant fanatics, and worse than all, it looks as if we should have to rely on time to heal the wounds in our honor.

The Public School Examinations.

For some two years past the Superintendent of Public Education has been pursuing a plan of examining, marking and grading, admirably adapted to turn the teachers of the City schools into machines, and the scholars, of whatever capacity originally, into conceited blockheads. At certain appointed days each school is visited in turn, each class subjected to a cast-iron catechism, and the grade of the class, of the school, and, by inference, of the teacher, marked down according to the perfectness or imperfection of the answers given. If seven scholars in a class of eight, answer perfectly the questions fired at them, the class is marked 7. If all answer unexceptionably, it is marked 8, and if all the classes in the school should receive the 8 mark, the school would be graded 1—which, recorded of schools, means perfection. Of course, as the millenium of cast-iron has not yet arrived, no school has yet attained to 1—the highest, we believe, reaching but 2 95-100.

If the circumstances of all the schools in the City were exactly alike, this would not be so entirely stupid and unjust an arrangement as it is now. But by so much as the Sixth and Eighteenth Wards differ in intelligence, by just so much is the system unfair to the less intelligent Ward. No matter how faithful the teaching, no matter how admirable the process es by which wild and ragged urchins from the street find their latent intellects developed in the schools about the Five Points, it is impossible that these schools or their teachers should ever be rated as high as schools and teachers in more favored parts of the City. If some intelligent woman finds that it is possible to communicate to her unwashed flock some idea of what the words of their text-books mean, by illustrations that seize hold upon their attention and interest them, the anticipated visit of the cast-iron examiner, with his series of cast-iron questions, which intelligence will not in any degree help to answer, brings her back to the machine-work of stuffing them with words—otherwise her school is degraded, and her professional character damaged. It is killing out the spirit of teachers, converting the schools into places for packing into infantile memories formulas of words that convey no meaning, and already working irreparable mischief.

One of the most obvious results of this wretched policy of the examining authority is seen in the crowding of the Primaries. The teachers of Primaries dare not promote their best scholars to the Grammar schools, for with every departing scholar, fit for promotion, goes one upon whom the teacher relies for keeping up the grade when the examiner comes round. The teachers of the higher schools object to receiving scholars from the Primaries, because every new scholar helps to degrade the average standing of his classes. So that the constant tendency is to keep back scholars, and to discourage every effort on their part except to remember certain answers to the inevitable questions of the examiner. In justice to that officer, it should be stated that he makes no pretensions to always putting the same questions,—which only adds to the chances of his confusing the innocent subjects of his inquisition, and makes the grade of the school depend upon the state of his own digestion. It would be better, since the answers must be unvarying, that the questions should be so too.

At the last meeting of the Board of Education, a memorial was sent in, signed by the greater part of the principals who have not yet become the perfect machines that the system requires, protesting respectfully against its further use, as unjust to all parties, damaging and mischievous. The Board referred the matter to a Standing Committee, and at the same time requested the Superintendent to send in an exposition of the principles upon which "with mathematical accuracy" they guage the standing of the schools. Probably at the next meeting the subject will be discussed, and as the Board is already well posted as to the stupidity of the system, it is to be hoped that it will at once order it discontinued, and forever.

The Registry Law.

The much-abused Registry Law promises to work well at the coming election. In the rural districts, and in all the cities except New-York, we hear that the work of preliminary canvassing progresses admirably. In Brooklyn it is already completed, and there is every promise that but little illegal voting can happen there in November. In this City, the Supervisors have very strenuously striven to befog the matter. The clerical blunder of allowing the preposition "by" in a portion of the printed law, which speaks of the payment of inspectors and their clerks, has been excuse enough for the Board to suspend the action required of them. If the obvious meaning of the enactment were permitted any force in its interpretation, the interloping "by," which makes nonsense of the sentence as it stands, would be overlooked, and the Supervisors would go on with their work. In their delay, the opinion of the Tribune that the inspectors appointed to act as registrars have nothing to do with the election, has brought great comfort to them; but the basis of the Tribune's ungracious conclusion we are utterly unable to appreciate. Upon this point, if on no other, the law is explicit and clear. Its language is:

"The Board of Supervisors of the City and County of New-York shall annually appoint three Inspectors for each Election District."

"The said Board of Supervisors shall assemble on the third Monday of September in each year, at 11 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, at the usual place of meeting of said Board, and proceed to ballot for the Inspectors provided for in this section for said City."

"The three persons receiving the greatest number of votes for each election district, shall be the inspectors of such election district for one year thereafter, and until others are appointed in their places."

How any doubt could have arisen upon this point, except in the minds of persons predetermined to frustrate the intentions of the act, it is difficult to conceive. These Inspectors are to hold their first meeting on Tuesday, three weeks preceding the General Election. It will greatly add to the public confidence in these men, that their names be early known. Their fitness for the important work intrusted to them is to be carefully canvassed, and the more scrupulously since it seems that they are all to be of one side in politics. The time that at the longest will be afforded for this task is little enough. The Supervisors owe to themselves and the public immediate and final action in this matter.

The Lifting of Vizors.

Mr. N. P. Willis' recent trip on the cow-catcher of a railway train must have seriously addled his mind. It is charitable, at least, to put this construction upon a letter of enormous length which has just appeared over his signature in "explanation" of a monstrous story about Lieut. Maury, and a princess of the "Sandwich Islands," for which he made himself responsible immediately on his return from a journey of two or three days in the company of that distinguished man of science.

The facts of the affair, cleared of the kaleidoscopic efflorescence of verbiage under which Mr. Willis has buried them, are few and forcible. Mr. Willis met Lieut. Maury by invitation, as one of a party of gentlemen. In the natural course of things, many light and careless tales were told, anecdotes recounted, and jokes passed among these fellow-travelers, each one feeling himself to be under the invisible protection of that general confidence and discretion which is presupposed of all people of ordinary good breeding when they are thrown together as the guests of a common host. Lieut. Maury told his stories like the rest. Upon one of these stories, Mr. Willis seized, confounding jest with truth, forthwith wrote it out as an item with circumstances and details of his own, and published to the world the astounding intelligence that Lieut. Maury in his early youth had been entrapped into a savage marriage with a Princess of Owhyhee! The idle story went its way careering through the papers, as such stories will, till Lieut. Maury at last was forced to remonstrate publicly against the foolish scandal thus occasioned.

That Mr. Willis should have done such a thing as this is not, perhaps, surprising. He has devoted so much time to the glorification of gossip, that he has doubtless come at last to think that the noblest object to which a man can surrender himself is the work of writing biography through a key-hole. But it was to have been supposed that Lieut. Maury's reclamations against such an abuse of his confidence and his name might evoke something like an apology to him as well as to the public. They have produced no such effect. Far from it!

Mr. Willis sees only two serious reasons for regret in this extraordinary performance of his. He is rather sorry that he should have mistaken the island of "Owhyhee" for a "generic nickname applicable vaguely to all the inhabitants of the Pacific Islands;" and he is sincerely vexed that as the "Antarctic marriage" in question never took place, his romance should therefore "lack the climax (as real life is apt to do) of which the dramatist would have constituted his fifth act." For the rest he is quite sure that Lieut. Maury and all the rest of mankind must be delighted with this glance which he has given them through "a lift of the vizor at the inner features of the man." The said "lift of the vizor" in plain English being Lieut. Maury's mistaken notion that he might talk with Mr. Willis as freely as with any other gentleman in the same company. Mr. Willis was thus enabled to inspect Lieut. Maury quite minutely; and as Lieut. Maury has earned for himself an honorable name, Mr. Willis felt that the results of this inspection "were too interesting to keep wholly to himself." In other words, it is Mr. Willis' cheerful creed that the sanctities of private life have no existence for public men, and that everybody who is unlucky enough to be of distinguished use to the world in his day and generation, must make up his mind that his cards of invitation to his home will be regarded merely as free tickets for a critical Press, enthusiastically bent on preserving "such records of personal intercourse as may be illustrative of distinguished lives and characters." We hardly need do Mr. Willis the justice to say that he has proved his faith by his works, for we doubt whether any one man now living has done more than he to feed the idle passion for personalities, and the vulgar license of intrusion on the privacy of public men, which so deform our literature and plague our social life.

But abominable as Mr. Willis' theory on these matters is, his practice in the particular instance before us is not covered by its liberal skirts. If he had given us the measure of Lieut. Maury's nose, or "illustrated the first tone and temper of his boyhood" by observations on his manner of eating eggs at breakfast, Mr. Willis might claim to be discharging the noble office which he delights to fill. But, in the simple vernacular, Mr. Willis merely wrote and published an enormous fib by way of showing how "the coinage and precious metal of a poet" lay hid within that scientific brain. This kind of "lifting of vizors" can hardly do Posterity much service, and is as little likely to "amuse" any person of common good feeling as it is to "instruct" any man, woman or child out of the Asylum for Idiots.

The Pardoning Power in England—The Case of Dr. Smethurst.—The absurdities to which "the pardoning power," as at present exercised in England, as well as here, occasionally leads has recently been well exemplified in the case of Smethurst, the surgeon accused of poisoning a lady in order to get possession of her money. He received a long and patient trial. The medical evidence given on it was exact, minute and clear. It left no doubt whatever that the deceased had died from the effects of poison. The remainder of the evidence seems to have amply satisfied the jury that the prisoner was the person who administered it. He was found guilty, and solemnly sentenced to be hanged.

Like most persons in his position, he made every possible effort to get a reprieve. He alleged that his case had not been fully heard; that there were circumstances which if properly brought to light, would at least raise a reasonable doubt of his guilt, and consequently suggest the impropriety of hanging him.

Accordingly, in compliance with the urgent solicitations of his friends, the Home Secretary, as the Queen's representative in such matters, consented to hear the prisoner's counsel, and to allow fresh witnesses to be examined before him. The result of this review of the case has been that Smethurst's sentence has been commuted into imprisonment for life. The whole proceeding is an exact counterpart of what occurs here in similar cases, the Governor being substituted for the Home Secretary. For this reason, we cannot help calling attention to the anomalies which appear on the face of it. The "review" of the Home Secretary was in reality a new trial, granted for the purpose of adducing fresh evidence. It was a new trial granted by a person not not a judge or even a lawyer, and totally destitute of experience, either in taking or weighing testimony. It came off before the same personage, in the presence only of the prisoners' representatives, the public who have a good deal to say in the matter, not being represented by anybody. The result was the setting aside of the solemn verdict of a jury of twelve men, stamped with the approval of a judge, by a single Government official seated in his own office. Moreover, the absurdity does not end here. The commutation was granted confessedly because the new evidence raised a doubt as to the prisoner's guilt. But it is a time-honored principle of English law, that a doubt as to guilt is to have the effect of absolution. If a jury doubt, they must acquit altogether. The Home Secretary assumes the functions both of judge and jury, but when he doubts, the prisoner may still be kept in penal servitude for life. It would not be easy to find a stronger illustration of the necessity which exists in England, as well as here, for a "Court of Pardons," organized as other Courts, to hear and pass upon all fresh matter which the prisoner may have to bring forward. The mere repetition of what has been already said clearly, ought not to be listened to, inasmuch as upon that a properly constituted tribunal has already pronounced its opinion.

Our City Amusements.

It does not often happen at any time of the year that all our meritorious places of entertainment find an abundance of public patronage, and least of all at that anomalous season when the agonies of house-cleaning have barely come to an end. There is usually a vasty desert of stern dullness between the outgoing of our country cousins and the incoming of our own native Mrs. Grundy—the latter distinguished person preferring the alternative of perpetual catarrh at the sea side, to the mental agony of being at home a week or an hour before her fashionable neighbor opposite.

Thanks to the flush times, there is no such dreary interval to be bridged this year. All our hotels are full to overflowing, and the trottoirs of our streets are as crowded and animated as the beauty and fashion of our own population could make them in the height of the season. In fact, New-York is rapidly attaining to the dignity of two seasons, one for ourselves and Mr. Brown, of Grace Church, the other for our cousins and Central Park. Brown, who ruralizes and cultivates the poets, with a view to confectionary, does not object, and the thing may, therefore, be regarded as done. Four or five years ago all the moving population of the country could be accommodated in a couple of down-town hotels; now we have superb palaces provided for its Summer convenience, massive buildings in which the ingenuity of man has been taxed to render life extatic and superb. Keeping pace with these things, and contributing to them in more ways than one, we see magnificent places of amusement spring up like palaces of enchantment. Italian Opera, with its sensitive appreciation of all that is elegant and fashionable, was the first to move up town, and despite an average crop of managerial failures, has done well by it. Then followed other establishments less extensive in their character, but equally dependent on good neighborhood and easy access. These have crept up, up, and the only theatres recognized by the critical taste of New-York, and of course indorsed by New-York's visitors, will soon be all above the old line of fashionable demarcation.

Mr. Wallack, the veteran of the stage, still, like Horatius, keeps the bridge, and maintains a gallant fight on the far frontier of Broome-street. Miss Laura Keene was a victorious pioneer beyond Bleecker, and that marvel of neatness and comfortable beauty, the Winter Garden, is now making Bond-street a "down town" terminus for the evening trains of pleasure.

These theatres are all now in "the full tide of successful experiment." The country sustains them to-day, and before the country swarms homeward, the City will be crowding their doors. Nor undeservedly.

For while the Metropolitan Theatre, architecturally considered, has made the progress of ten years in the last two or three, artistically considered it is undergoing a thorough change very much for the better.

The old theory of management was the Catalinian one—myself and a few puppets. The public was expected to rush to a banquet at which that perpetual chairman, the Manager, said all the good things, and for a time it did regale itself in this hopeful way. But all the fun of the greatest comedian of the age, could not save the principle from ultimate failure. The public yawned, and then the benches, and then the exchequer, and then the greatest comedian of the age took to the Provinces. Egotism received its first blows, and the era of good companies commenced. One discovery often leads to another, and so when it was found out that the public really had eyes and ears, and that they went to a theatre not because Mr. So-and-so kept it, but because they wanted to be amused, a new light flashed upon the managerial mind. Instead of a brief and inhospitable announcement of the evening's play, conveyed in the most dreary language, with no blessed relief of capitals except when the managers name occurred, a more luxuriant and refreshing document was submitted to the curious in such matters. Mr Stuart's facile pen, in particular, suffused the theatrical firmament in a glow of unusual splendor, and gave to the play-bill a tremendous significance, which the public could not fail to remark. This, of course, was all that Mr. Stuart desired. Miss Laura Keene, more recently, has adopted the same excellent plan, and, if anything, exceeds Mr. Stuart in the rapturous use of an exceedingly ornate—not to say Oriental—vocabulary. The natural result of this direct appeal to the public is of course an overflowing of business. The public, attracted by the display made in the papers, go to the theatre, and, when there, are so heartily satisfied with the superb companies that they need no second inducement to go again.

With such establishments, and our Academy of Music, to afford amusement to the migratory thousands who perambulate the country in the Summer months, it is not remarkable that New-York is becoming yearly of more importance as a place of Summer resort. Its gayeties and healthful conveniences are nearly the same all the year round, but if we may judge by the throngs who occupy our hotels and theatres—excellent guages—it is more near a high carnival now than it is again likely to be this side of Christmas.

AMERICAN INSTITUTE'S FAIR.

Judge Meigs' Opening Address—Novelties—Valuable Improvements, and fine Fruits.

Now the American Institute's Fair is fairly opened, for at 8 o'clock last night Judge Meigs took his position in front of the refreshment gallery, and read in full hearing of those who cared to listen, the opening address. It was a word of welcome to the grounds, a glimpsing at the progress of the mechanic arts, a prophecy of still more astonishing advances hereafter, an allusion to the Great Eastern, which, if she can wind in through Hell Gate, could pursue her route unhindered if she chose, up our Hudson to the City of Hudson, and a hope that the projected Amoor River and Behring's Straits telegraph might yet girdle the globe. The Judge was well received, and loudly applauded on concluding.

The Fair was open. A quorum of the Reception Committee had been on hand during the day, and worked faithfully, or so much could not have been accomplished in twenty-four hours. All the available space in the main hall had been taken, and most of the goods had been unpacked and set in place. The great tent shielded from the sun of the day and from the dew of the evening a really handsome display of fruits, flowers, vegetables and such bulky articles as could not be accommodated under the roof. The boiler and engine foundations had been built, and the long shed under which the machinery will be exhibited after Sunday next was crowded with heavy implements for the performance of all sorts of heavy and delicate work—of which as yet nothing can be judged except by the labels; from these it would be presumed that many novel devices dispensing with manual labor will be manifested when the power is furnished. The grounds were well lighted during the evening, and at nine o'clock the crowd of visitors was quite as large as was really comfortable.

Mr. Fuller, entry clerk of the Horticultural Department, reported 39 exhibitors—each of which had from six varieties of fruit or flowers up to a hundred. W. S. Carpenter, of Rye, Westchester County, exhibits a large general collection—among them 60 varieties of potatoes and 25 of squashes. The "apple melon," seeds of which Com. Perry brought home from Japan, is exhibited in quantities—some of the specimens weighing 40 pounds. Capt. A. Richardson, of Grand-street, Brooklyn, exhibits the best varieties of pears—some of them remarkable for the age of the trees that bore them. His Duchesse-d'Angoulemes, which are very fine and large, are from dwarf trees on quince stock, now 35 years old. The trees exhibit no sign of decay, and the fruit improves every year, he says, with the age of the tree. His Beurre d'Amaulis—of which the exhibited specimens weigh 14 ounces each, are from trees that were imported from France fifteen years ago and were then 20 years old. A. A. Leverick, of Broadway, (Brooklyn,) showed the best quinces—the twelve weighing ten pounds. They are the true orange variety. Along side of them he exhibits an inferior orange quince, which was bought for a Portugal. The true Portugals are green, small and pear-shaped. Of all the varieties here the orange takes precedence. It is a foreigner, of course, as we have none native to our soil, but is the one that has longest been grown for the New-York market. The Blackwell's Island garden truck occupies a good deal of room and makes a fine show. There are some pumpkins among them, but none to compare with Mr. Bennett's, which is on its way down from the field of glory at the Third-avenue Railroad Hall, and when it arrives will throw into the shade all that have yet been entered.

Under the tent, Gibson's clothes Drying machine attracts the attention of housekeepers. It consists of a mast, inclosed by a box through which two horizontal arms of timber pass at right angles to each other. Cords are stretched from pegs inserted into the arms, upon which a tremendous washing can be hung without crowding. A cord and pulley then lifts the box, arms and clothes to the top of the mast, and out of reach. The cost of this machine is $10. The like of pting it, excethe pulley and hoisting arrangements, is in common use in Michigan. For cramped yards, or on the roofs of City houses, it would work better in some respcts than Tipt's patent—a sort of inverted umbrella, upon whose ribs the clothes are hung, and when dried, the ribs, by a cord and pulley, are drawn up close to the mast. The latter is snugger six days in the week, but not so handy on Mondays. It is only exhibited here by a model.

Several new rail-car seats are seen. The most promising is Forrester's datent, entered by Jessup & Co. By day it differs little from the usual fixed seats, except that both bottom and back are adjusted at any required angle. To make a night seat of it, the back is let down, almost horizontally, the bottom brought into line with it, and by an easy movement four cushioned sections of plank, of the width of the back that are attached to the seat next in front, fall into line; so that the passenger sleeps or dreams str etchd at full length, but the line of his body lying at about an angle of 20 degrees to the horizon. This is the first appearance of this odd contrivance north of Mason's & Dixon's Line, though it is in use on the Orange and Alexandria Road. Price per seat $35. Another device for making night passengers believe that they are going to be comfortable while railroading at unseasonable hours, is shown, but nobody will believe on inspection that his sleep on it could be very refreshing.

Brady's elliptical spring for wagons—which ingeniously dispenses with the need of bolts, and, by giving an angular form to the leaves, secures them safely in place—promises to be a valuable improvement.

There are several new spring-beds, none of which, so far as a hasty glance could show, are any great improvement on the articles already in market. Thistle's patent-right bedstead is a better bookcase by day and spring-bed by night than any that has yet been exhibited at the Institute's Fair. Being balanced, a child can lift the bed into its concealment, but the objection is not obviated which lies against all such arrangements, that the cost of the article is so great that they only who can afford room for an honest and confessed bedstead could afford the price of this. With an abundance of bug-poison always on hand, however, it might be useful in a crowded apartment, and certainly is ingenious

Seven different sewing machines are in place, but only two of them yet enjoy the attentions of an operator.

Hinton & Co. exhibit a new churn. It is a cask strongly built, hung on pivots in a frame, in which a crank gives it an easy and rapid revolution. The cask being half filled with milk, the top is put on and screwed tight, to which the rubber packing contributes. Turn the cask bottom upward, and to the other end apply a cheap stout air-pump, and through an india-rubber tube force in atmospheric air. Churn five or ten minutes, and—if the circular tells the truth—there is a jolly lot of golden butter inside. The operation is not performed on the premises.

Three stereoscopic boxes help amuse lounagers—it is a wonder that there are not more of them.—A case of bottles of Spalding's prepared glue is always surrounded by a throng of admirers, who wonder that the article was not before introduced into market. Its peculiarity is that, whether the bottle is corked or not, the glue remains liquid until it is spread upon the broken furniture, and then nothing can tempt it to let go its hold.—Some fine specimens of East Brooklyn glass canes, tubes and shades are shown.—A large and powerful apparatus for creating champagne excites a suspicion that all is not imported that sparkles under that name.—Dr. Griscom's method of ventilating buildings is expounded by a large drawing, but the model house said to be on the premises was not visible, after much search for it.—A right useful invention, and one which ought to go early into the schools, is the slate globe, manufactured in New-Haven, but by whom does not appear. It is a globe of slate, hung as all terrestrial globes are, but perfectly blank. A child taught to draw countries in outline on it would be sure to get correct ideas of their comparative size and extent, and one day over it would be worth months of poring over maps, and stuffing to answer cast-iron questions at the semi-annual examination.—The Exhibition grows more and more valuable every hour, and is getting more and more creditable daily. It will remain open during October.

The Choctaw Mission.—It is understood that the Prudential Committee of the A. B. C. F. M. have decided to sever their connection with this Mission. This action, it is presumed, will receive the most serious consideration of the Board at its approaching meeting in Philadelphia.

The Chesapeake and Ohio Canal.—It is not anticipated that the damage done to the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal, by the recent rise in the Potomac River, will prove of any serious impediment to the coal trade. There are already upon the wharves of the river depôts, awaiting shipment, some 40,000 tons, and this stock will not, it is thought, be exhausted many days before the trade, temporarily interrupted to repair the damage done the canal, will be resumed.

FROM MEXICO.

Military Operations in the Interior—Condition of the Liberal Army.

By the brig Nancy, Capt. GODFREY, at New-Orleans from Vera Cruz, we have advices from that port to the 3d inst. Very late intelligence had been received from the military operations in the interior, which were everywhere progressing satisfactorily.

The Commander-in-Chief, DEGOLLADO, was still himself, at last accounts, at San Luis Potosi. The detachment of DONLADO, however, had been sent forward to Guanajuato, where the General had succeeded in firmly establishing himself. Zacatecas was in like manner held by some 2,000 men.

Gen. TRACONIS had also advanced to Dolores with some 1,500 men, where he was likewise to await the movements of the main body. There were still remaining at San Luis about 1,500 men more.

The letters state that DEGOLLADO found his army at San Luis in a dreadful state of disorganization, but that he had, to a great extent, succeeded in restoring harmony, especially among the rival chieftains. We notice, however, that ZUAZUA, commanding the northern division, had returned home, for what reason is not stated. Should it turn out that it is from an unwillingness to serve under DEGOLLADO, whom he is said to despise, the Liberal cause will have lost their ablest officer.

The Aurora Borealis was observed at Vera Cruz, as in other places, to the south, but it was only for a short time visible, on account of the clouded state of the atmosphere.

The official paper of the Constitutional Government publishes in full the correspondence between Mr. Mc LANE and the Minister for Foreign Affairs, on occasion of the departure of the former, but being purely complimentary, they add nothing to our knowledge of our relations with Mexico.

Northern Mexico.

MILITARY MOVEMENTS—MIRAMON IN THE FIELD—THE LAWS OF MARRIAGE, &C., IN THE NORTH.

From the Brownsville Flag, of the 8th September, we derive the following facts from the Northern States of Mexico:

A force of 650 infantry, under VELES, with four small pieces of artillery and 60 dragoons, holds Guanajuato. Thirty persons and upwards had been banished for embracing Liberal opinions. One of them is a lady.

The Liberal, of San Luis, publishes a rumor of the coming of American volunteers with approving remarks, and all is copied in like spirit by the Boletin of Durango.

The laws of JUAREZ of 23d and 28th July, regulating marriages, births and deaths, intended as substitutes for the ecclesiastical tyranny to which Mexico has always been hitherto subject in these respects, has been published by authority in the States of Durango, San Luis and Tamaulipas.

Gen. ZUAZUA was in Monterey on the 30th, on a visit to Gov. VIDAURRI, to confer with him upon various points of the greatest interest to the public cause.

There is no intimation given as to the whereabouts of MIRAMON, or as to any fighting had, which looks badly for our Liberal friends. The defeat of PACHECO by HINOJOSA is confirmed, but PACHECO had only 250 to 300 men. It is, however, evident that MIRAMON is in the North in person, and the Monterey Boletin gives his force thus:

Infantry	3,351
Cavalry	882
Total	4,233

News from Havana.

ARRIVAL OF THE GRANADA.

The United States mail steamer Granada, from Havana on the 23d inst. at 3 P. M., arrived at this port yesterday morning.

The Granada left New-Orleans on the 20th at 8 A. M., and arrived at Key West on the evening of the 22d at 6¾ o'clock. After disembarking the California passengers and mail, she left again at 8¾ o'clock the same evening for Havana, at which port she arrived on the following morning at 5½ o'clock.

The Granada has experienced strong head winds during the passage from Havana. Havana was unusually healthy for the season. Freights were dull.

Besides other freight, the Granada brings 157,000 Mexican dollars from New-Orleans.

Academy of Music.

VERDI'S opera of "Ernani" was performed here last night to a good house. In vigorous conception, bold dramatic effects, and telling harmonic combinations, it is one of the most successful works of the composer, and one of the best. The distribution, although unique in some respects, was popular in its elements, and presented us with a new Elvira, in the person of Mme. GASSIER. This lady has not, we think, been heard to greater advantage this season. Signor STEFANI, the tenor, sang the part with his usual fervor, and with some of his usual indiscretion—forgetting, as he frequently does, that the best of voices may prove insufficient in certain exigencies, where art should be called to the aid of mere physical ability. Signor GASSIER played the rôle of Silva, as a substitute—and a good one, too—for Signor JUNCA, who was unable to sing, owing to indisposition. No artist should be more warmly welcomed back to our stage than this gentleman. He is of the few who know how to sing.

On Friday the opera of "Don Giovanni" will be performed, with an immense distribution.

The American Minister in China—His Invitation to Pekin.

Correspondence of the Philadelphia Ledger.

U. S. SHIP POWHATAN,
Off the Pehio River, Monday, July, 4, 1859.

I had hoped to have written this letter from Pekin, but the fortunes of war still detains us at the mouth of the Peiho. We left Shangahae on the 18th ult., anchored here on the 20th, learned that the English squadron, anchored around us, had been refused permission to pass the forts, and on the 24th, took advantage of a smooth day to communicate with the latter and notify their commanding officers that the American Minister was at hand and ready to proceed to Pekin.

The result of this advance upon our part was the information that we could not proceed to Peking by this route, but that there was another a few miles further north, where, if we would proceed, we would meet the high officers, who would talk to us about it. They, however, refused to furnish us a pilot for the sea route, or sedan chairs for the road overland, and the unavoidable inference from the interview generally was the conviction that we were, as usual, being trifled with.

On the 29th ult., the writer was ordered to the Toey-wan to act as Pilot during a trip to the North in search of the other port or entrance to the Pie-Ho, spoken of by the Chinese at the Forts. Mr. W. W. WARD, Secretary of Legation, and Messrs. WILLIAMS and MARTIN, Interpreters, accompanied the expedition, the object of which was to inquire into the truth of the Chinese assertion as to a second entrance, and to deliver a letter for the Governor-General of the Province, should such a thing prove practicable. We were very doubtful as to the nature of the reception to be expected at their hands, as they were undoutedly at war with the English, and as they generally make no distinction between us, extreme caution was necessary.

In the meantime, our Minister had been pursuing a course which promises to take us to Peking by the middle of the month. Whether it will terminate in "Chinese promises" or not, remains to be seen. No sooner did he behold the English beaten off, than he saw at a glance that our visit to Peking rested entirely upon the Chinese. In fact, he must have seen Peking receding very far into the distance, our only object being to exchange the treaties, which it was in their power to have done at Canton as well as the Northern Capital. Imagine our surprise, therefore, when he received a letter from the Tau-tai (Governor) of Tein-Sing, which, being translated, gave us a certain (Chinese certainty) prospect of being conducted in state to Peking.

This arrived on the 2d inst., and was to the effect "that the letter to Gov. KING had been received by the Taustai of Tein-Sing, and would be forwarded—that on the 5th, Gov. KING would meet the American Minister at the northern entrance, and conduct him and his suite to Pekin, for the purpose of exchanging the treaties, and that a pilot would be sent to bring us into the entrance." Accompanying this letter was a list of provisions sent us as a "cumshaw" or present, which we accepted, more with the object of showing that we were friendly than anything else. They consisted of the following: 20 sheep, 20 pigs, 140 chickens, 60 ducks, 2,500 lbs. white flour, 2,000 lbs. rice, 250 lbs. vegetables, 250 lbs. fruit, and they were divided equally among all on board.

JULY 5.—We are gradually consuming this "cumshaw," as we await the arrival of the pilot, who should have been here yesterday. Perhaps he could not make for us, for want of wind, as a junk has been in sight since yesterday morning, evidently trying to beat up to our anchorage.

The present impression on board is that a pilot is close at hand to take the Tocy-wan into an unknown entrance—that he has been sent by the Government—that to-morrow we shall have an interview with the Governor-General, and that by the 15th we shall have traveled by boat and sedan chair from the North Forts to Peking.

Terrible Riot Among the Pennsylvania Coal-Miners.

From the Pittsburg Evening Chronicle, Sept. 27.

Our county was disgraced yesterday by one of the most terrible and outrageous riots that has ever occurred within her limits. It is pretty generally known that, for weeks past, a most unpleasant feeling has existed between the large mass of our coal-miners and their employers. The former demand that they be paid for their labor by weight, and the latter refusing to comply with their request, a strike was the consequence, of which we are only just now beginning to reap the fruits. We say just now, for up to yesterday the meetings of the striking miners were conducted with order and decorum, and an evident desire manifested to avoid anything like a resort to violence in the enforcement of their claims. This, the only sound policy which, under the circumstances, could have been pursued, has, to a certain extent, been abandoned. The miners, or a portion of them at least, now seek to accomplish by force what they have been unable to effect by moral suasion, and as the first instalment of the disgraceful scenes which must follow a course so lawless and reprehensible, we have the riot to which we refer above. We give full details of the affair below, premising that they were had from an unprejudiced source, and will, we think, be found correct in every particular.

Some days ago the firm of J. CORRY & Co., coal merchants, had an understanding with their men to the effect that if their wagons were branded they would waive their claims to the scales and resume work. Yesterday, in pursuance of this arrangement, a man was brought from the city to brand the cars, and thirty-five of the men, feeling satisfied with the concession, resumed work. During the day the striking miners held a meeting in the neighborhood, at which the usual speeches were made and resolutions passed. One of the speakers indulged in an harangue of an inflammatory character, in which the men who had resumed work in CORRY & Co.'s pit were denounced, and their course subjected to the severest censure. The speech had the desired effect. Acting under the impulse and excitement of the moment, some two hundred of the men proceeded to CORRY & Co.'s pit, and assailing the men as they came out from work, a terrible scene followed. The parties attacked defended themselves with vigor, and being joined by Mr. CORRY and others from the adjoining works, they in the end put their assailants to flight, not, however, till one of their number was almost murdered and several others dangerously injured.

To-day Mr. CORRY came to the city and made information charging Conrad Spiedal, F. Martin, Caspar Raymond, N. Hartman, W. Sinedigger, G. Newton and G. Decker, with riot. Three officers were dispatched to Port Perry by the 11 o'clock train, and by the time we get to press the capture of the accused will, we presume, have been effected. One of the ringleaders, the man SPEIDAL, was caught at the depôt, just as the officers were about leaving, and committed in default of $500 bail. What disposition will be made of the others, should they be arrested, remains to be sain.

We are gratified to learn that hereafter measures will be taken to prevent, as far as possible, occurrences like that of yesterday. The authorities will protect such men as choose to go to work in the enjoyment of their undoubted right to do so, and leave nothing undone to prevent any interference with them from their striking brethren.

SPORTING NEWS.

The Turf—The Ten Broeck Steed—Cock-fighting—Horse-racing in Massachusetts—The Three Spirits.

The October engagements of Mr. TEN BROECK'S horses on the English turf are entered for the Cesarewitch and Cambridgeshire stakes, both occurring on the 10th October. For the former, he has entered Starke, Prioress, Des Chiles, Cincinnati and Ochiltree. Mr. HARLAN has also entered his horses for the same races. The now famous Umpire is formally booked for the Derby of May, 1860. Among the recent purchases of Mr. TEN BROECK are the well-known racer Cock-a-hoop, and a yearling colt by Mildew, sire of High Treason. With these additions to his stock, Mr. T. has left for Newmarket. Wilkes' Spirit of the Times has the following comments upon the nature of Mr. TEN BROECK'S new speculations abroad:

"It has occasioned much remark here, that Mr. TEN BROECK should have run Umpire at Stockton after the development of his great merit in the Nursery Stakes at Goodwood; and that he should not rather, in accordance with the expresion of the English sporting journals, have held him up entirely for the Epsom Derby. The odds about him for that event, as against the English field of nearly two hundred entries, was, before the Goodwood meeting, at 100 to 1. His victory at Goodwood, however, brought this down in Umpire's favor to 20 to 1; and there he might have remained had not Mr. T. B., contrary to the general judgment run him again to further victory at Stockton, and thus made him first favorite at the strong rate of only 10 to 1 against him for the field. It is plain to us, however, that Mr. TEN BROECK is not running Umpire to gratify English notions, but rather to please himself and to suit his own book. Having taken all that he wanted (say half a million of dollars by an investment of five thousand) at the rate of 100 to 1, it is clearly his interest to run his colt as high in favor as he can. By this means he can send a broker round among the book-makers, and by backing the field and taking his colt to lose, at the current rate of odds, make a sure thing of at least two or three hundred thousand dollars whichever way the event may go."

A cock-fighting match of extravagant proportions considering the smallness of the game, is likely to be made up presently, between Virginia and Tennessee. The challenge and acceptance appear in Wilkes' Spirit. One W. A. GARDNER, of Memphis, challenged the world to beat his cocks; and a party, signing themselves JONES, PEASLEY & FINN, hailing from Richmond, Va., offer to take him up. The Memphis challenger is requested to take up the offer on the following liberal terms, and the world is invited to witness the exciting scenes of a cock pit:

"We will meet the Santa Anna, the great brag Cock-Fighter the Second, at Fairfield Race Course, near Richmond, and fight for $250 the fight, and $10,000 the odd, and pay him $500 to defray his expenses to Richmond; or meet him in Augusta, or Macon, Ga., each man to defray his own expenses. An immediate answer is desired, as our cocks are all out on the walks. We are prepared at any moment to deposit $5,000 forfeit in the hands of any responsible banking-house wherever the fight may take place."

The citizens of the town of Palmer, Mass., have determined to build a trotting-track for themselves, and have purchased land therefor, at a cost of $2,000. They say the matter is in good hands, and that there is a prospect of some fine trotting.

The three Spirits of the Times (the "original Jacobs," once RICHARDS', but now conducted by Col. THORPE; the old Porter's Spirit, lately edited by GEO WILKES; and Wilkes' Spirit, which latter has carried with it most of the old contributors of Porter's) are still running a vigorous race. Porter's Spirit of this week announces that Col. YOUNG, proprietor of the Spirit of the South, has become additionally connected with that sheet. It is fair to presume, therefore that the triangular battle will be carried on more ardently than ever.

PERSONAL.

A gossiping correspondent of the Manchester Guardian, describing the habits of the British Premier during the vacation, says: "At Broadlands, though no man tramps the stubbles or beats the cover with keener zest, or carries a surer double-barrel—and that, too, without spectacles, at 74—this is but the morning's amusement. By 2 or 3 o'clock, Lord Palmerston is in his room, elbow deep in dispatches, and walled about with office boxes. Visitors at the house see nothing of him till the late dinner at 8, and that dispatched—though there may be an adjournment to the drawing-room, and even the billiard room, where the perennial host still handles his cue like a master, and again without spectacles—Lord Palmerston is no more visible after 10, but the lights are burning in his private room till 12 or 1 o'clock, or even later. In the intervals of this severe and protracted labor no one can be gayer or sprightlier than Lord Palmerston, or readier to take and pass the mot pour rire. Though Lord Palmerston declares he has no time to read 'anything but manuscripts,' he seems au fait of the current literature. Perhaps Lady Palmerston eviscerates it for him, and keeps him supplied with the essence for conversation."

Among the Americans at the different hotels in Interlachen, Switzerland, on the 8th inst., we notice the following: Messrs. A. Prescott, Schenk and lady, Goodrich and family, J. M. INSURANCE.

INSURANCE COMPANY
OF NEW-YORK.
Office in
Continental Bank Building,
No. 7 Nassau-st.,
Is prepared to issue Policies as follows, viz.:
POLICIES IN FAVOR OF AND PAYABLE TO THE WIFE,
Free from the claims of creditors.
POLICIES PAYABLE ON ATTAINING A SPECIFIED AGE,
Or payable in case of death before attaining such age.
POLICIES GRANTED TO CREDITORS,
On the lives of their debtors.
POLICIES GRANTED FOR ANY NUMBER OF YEARS,
PREMIUMS PAYABLE IN CASH,
Quarterly, semi-annually, or annually.
DIVIDENDS DECLARED EVERY THREE YEARS.
And the surplus belonging to the policy holders returned to them in Scrip.

This Scrip bears six per cent. per annum interest, payable in cash, and is redeemed when the aggregate issue shall have amounted to $1,000,000.

At the same time, the Company is empowered by its Charter to purchase the Scrip for the benefit of the policy holders before that time.

This Scrip is not affected by the forfeiture or sale of the policy, which is a great advantage over the system adopted by some Companies, of subjecting the dividend to the same terms of forfeiture and sale as the policy by indorsing it thereon. This is clearly unjust, as the dividend is a surplus fund, and is rightly the property of the insured, irrespective of the policy.

The interest on the Scrip gradually reduces the premium.

ITS PREMIUMS
ARE BASED UPON EXPERIENCE TO THE PRESENT TIME.

No one class of insurers is required to pay the deficiency of others.

REPUBLIC INSURANCE COMPANY—NO. 16 WALL-ST.—ECONOMY AND SECURITY IN FIRE INSURANCE.—Fire Insurance, combining the mutual plan with the capital stock principle.

The charter of this Company requires that 80 per cent. of the profits shall be annually divided to the assured in scrip bearing interest.

This Company has been in operation for five years, during which time it has declared to its dealers one hundred and thirty-five and one-half per cent. of their premiums. They insure against loss and damage by fire at the lowest current rates of solvent Companies.

The security offered to insurers is an accumulating one, their surplus being now nearly as large as their capital.

All persons who may have held policies issued by this Company, expiring in 1854, 1855, 1856, 1857 or 1858, and have not received the scrip to which they may be entitled, are requested to call and take it, together with the interest which is payable annually in cash.

Under the charter, all scrip not called for in six years from its date of issue, inures to the Company.

ROBERT S. HONE, President.
DUNCAN F. CURRY, Secretary.

THE JEWISH NEW-YEAR.—This is the Jewish New Year's day, and it is observed as such by all the Israelites throughout the land. The occasion is called the Rosh Hashanah, or New-Year, notwithstanding that the months are counted from the season of the Passover, in accordance with the ordinance of the law—Exodus xii., 2: "This month shall be unto you the beginning of the months; it shall be the first month of the year unto you." The Rosh Hashanah commemorates the supposed date of the creation of the world. It was formerly the custom to decorate the temples of worship with flowers, garlands, &c.—a practice which still obtains among the Israelites of Southern Europe and the West Indies, but is not generally indulged in here. It is also the day for commemorating the blowing of the Shophar, (ram's horn,) which, according to the ceremonial observances laid down in history, was sounded by the Priests to call the people to prayer and sacrifice. Such an instrument is accordingly sounded in all Jewish Synagogues on the day of the New Year in memorial of this ancient usage. Services will be held in all the Synagogues in New-York, of which there are thirteen in various parts of the City. Sermons in English will be preached by Dr. RAPHALL, in the Greene-street Synagogue; Dr. FISCHEL, in the Synagogue in Crosby-street; Dr. ISAACS, in Water-street; and (in the German language) Dr. ADLER, in the Reform Synagogue, Twelfth-street; and Dr. BONDI, in Norfolk-street. The services of the day will be conducted by the Rev. Dr. LYONS, in Crosby-street; the Rev. Dr. ISAACS, in Wooster-street; and by Dr. RUBIN in the Temple, in Twelfth-street. The ritual of the occasion is devoted almost entirely to hymns of praise selected from the Psalms of David, with portions of the Law and the Prophets, referring to the occasion. In the Orthodox Churches an elaborate poem by the early sages of the faith, commemorating Abraham's willingness to sacrifice his son Isaac, will be chaunted by the congregations.

THE RAILROAD ACCIDENT IN OLIVER-STREET—THE COMPANY CENSURED.—In this case, the particulars of which appeared in the TIMES of yesterday, an inquest was held by Coroner SCHIRMER, and a great many witnesses were examined. The testimony showed that two cars were going down Oliver-street, the first one but a short distance in advance of the other. The rear car had scarcely turned the curve when the rod of the forward brake gave way, and the heavily laden vehicle, without any check being applied, ran rapidly down the steep grade and struck the car in advance of it. The concussion threw the deceased, who was in the act of descending from the top of the first car, into the street, and a wheel of the rear car passed over his neck, killing him in an instant. The driver of the unmanageable vehicle testified that as soon as he discovered the rod to be broken, he shouted to the conductor to apply the rear brake. The conductor swears he endeavored so to do, but without effect, although the jury upon examining the car could discover no disarrangement of the mechanism. Several witnesses stated that the usual rate of speed of the cars down Oliver-street was dangerous, Officer BLACK of the Fourth Precinct, testifying that he had calculated, and judged they ran at the rate of 15 miles an hour. He had often reported them for running at so dangerous a rate. The jury deliberated about three-quarters of an hour, then brought in a verdict as follows: "DAVID HAZELTON came to his death by being run over by car No. 5 of the Second-avenue Railroad Company, and we further say that said Company is censurable for not stationing a man at the rear brake of the cars while passing through Oliver-street, from Chatham-square to South-street, and furthermore, that the cars are driven at too great speed in this locality." Deceased was about 16 years of age. He lived with his parents in Myrtle-avenue, between Franklin and Kent avenues, Brooklyn.

THE BIG SHIP AT NEW-YORK.—The Great Eastern will, after all, come to New-York. Alarmed at the suggestions of the jolly old tar who edits the Herald, the directors had decided that no attempts should be made to approach the City through the tortuosities of Plum Gut. Further inquiry appears to have satisfied that body of the accessibility of the port through the ordinary channels—and so, by Sandy Hook, and up the Lower Bay, and through the Narrows will the great ship make its way into our waters. This is a compliance with a very obvious dictate of common sense. At Portland a small party of a hundred thousand visitors might possibly have been coaxed together to see this mightiest of marine monsters; at New-York the monster will count in millions, and the profits of the Company will reach the upper tens of thousands; and that the Company is not indifferent to these little immediate returns there are various indications. In due course the vessel will be here early in November.

MISSIONARIES FOR AFRICA.—The bark Ocean Eagle, belonging to Messrs. YATES & PORTERFIELD, left this port on Tuesday morning, for Liberia. She carries out the Rev. WALTER CLARK, of Milburn, N. Y., and the Rev. M. S. ST. JOHN and wife, of Marietta, Ohio, who have been deputed to the Gaboon Mission, under the auspices of the American Board of Commissioners. Miss MARION MELVILLE, of Washington, D. C.; Miss H. C. RELF, of Lexington, Mo.; and Miss L. L. K. SPAULDING, of Lawrence, Miss., are to be connected with the Protestant Episcopal Mission, under Bishop PAYNE. The Rev. L. LOOMIS and wife will proceed to Corisco, under the charge of the Presbyterian Board. Interesting religious services were held on board the bark, while at anchor. Addresses were made by the Rev. Mr. SCOTT, formerly missionary at Cape Palmas, the Rev. J. P. HUBBARD, of the Episcopal Church, and others.

ADJOURNMENT OF THE PRAYER MEETING CONVENTION.—Before the adjournment of the Convention of the Business Men's Daily Union Prayer Meeting yesterday, it was resolved to adopt systematic action for the promotion of similar meetings in every city and village in the land, for the purpose of carrying out the principle of union, and the consecration of secular hours, places and powers which characterize these gatherings. Among other ways of attaining this end, the Convention contemplates field, tent and public hall preaching, lay-evangelism, missionary deputations to unawakened or destitute places, and the consecration of the power of the Press to the work of preaching the Gospel daily to all men. A Committee of nineteen have charge of the matter, and they will report at the next meeting of the Convention, which is appointed to take place on the 23d of next November in the City of Philadelphia.

THE WILLIAMSBURGH FERRIES.—A new ferry-boat called the Warren was on Tuesday placed on the ferry route between Peck-slip and South Eighth-street, Williamsburgh. This is the fourth new boat which the company has recently built at great expense, to run on this route. During the day she was decorated fore and aft with flags, and attracted much attention for her fine proportions and the ease and rapidity with which she passed through the water. Everything being new, this first trial is hardly a fair criterion by which to judge of her speed, yet it is said she made as good time as the George Law, the fastest of the opposition boats. Since the putting on of these new boats, and the renovation of the ferry establishments at each end of the route, there has been a perceptible increase in the business of the line. The Curlew and Eagle, two of the old boats, will be put in repair, and placed on the Grand-street Ferry. The one-cent fare is still adhered to, but occasionally a person asks to have a ticket given him to return!

"SHOULDER ARMS, EYES RIGHT."—The employes of Messrs. E. V. HAUGHWOUT & Co., numbering 176 men, besides a drum corps of 26 boys, paraded yesterday under command of Col. PARCI. Proceeding to Yorkville Park, they contended for 40 different prizes, which were worth nearly $1,000. They dined together very sociably after their return to the City in the evening.... The Columbian Volunteers, (named in honor of Columbian Engine Co., No. 14,) Capt. ANDREW PURTELL, went on their third annual excursion, yesterday, to Weehawken. They had 70 in their ranks, and their soldierly appearance occasioned laudatory remarks. Fifty fine prizes were awarded to the best shots. Before the Company started, a valuable sword was presented to their commanding officer.

BOWERY PAWNBROKERS FINED FOR USURY.—W. & R. SIMPSON, a firm of pawnbrokers at No. 195 Bowery, were adjudged guilty of demanding and collecting usurious interest, before City Marshal STEVENS yesterday. H. STROUS, of No. 78 Monroe-street, was the complainant. The Mayor gave the SIMPSONS the alternative of paying a fine of $100, or having their license revoked, and they at once concluded to pay the fine.

REGATTA AT STATEN ISLAND.—A five-mile rowing-match, for a purse of $500 and the championship of oarsmen, comes off to-day at Staten Island, near the first landing, between 12 and 2 o'clock. The contestants, DAW and FAY, have been in long training, and the strife for the purse and championship will, no doubt, be animated.

ACKNOWLEDGMENT.—The Treasurer of the Fourth Ward Reading Room acknowledges the receipt of the following additional donations to those already published, viz.: Cash, H. B. L., $20; cash, $4 20; cash, T. B., Philadelphia, $25; cash, G. L. S. per C. L. BRACE, $15. Total, $64 20.

BOY DROWNED.—WM. RYAN, a small boy, who lives at No. 465 Washington-street, fell into the river last night at the foot of Canal-street. He drowned before aid arrived. The Coroner's Jury rendered a verdict of "Accidental death."

IRELAND FROM A PROTESTANT STAND-POINT.—The Rev. Dr. EDGAR, the senior member of the Delegation sent hither by the Irish Presbyterian Church, will lecture this evening at the Cooper Institute. His subject: "Ireland as it was and as it is."

FOR EUROPE.—The Royal Mail steamer Persia, Capt. JUDKINS, took her departure yesterday, from this port for Liverpool. She carried out 123 passengers, and $472,612 50 in specie.

Police Reports.

SAID HE WAS A DETECTIVE.—A few weeks ago Jos. P. Santelle, an eating-house keeper at No. 305 Broome-street, was called upon by a stranger who represented himself as a detective policeman just about to go into the country to make an arrest, and, being very short of funds, desirous of a small loan, for which he would leave two checks on the Bank of the Commonwealth of $75 for security. Mr. Santelle hesitated, but eventually advanced the money. A day or two thereafter the man drove up in a carriage and said the further sum of $10 was needed to "work up" the case. He got the money. Afterwards the checks were discovered to be forged, and complaint was made to the Police. Detective Roach yesterday arrested Ed. R. Ferguson, who says he is a steamboat Captain, on the charge, and took him to Essex Market Police Court. There some satisfactory arrangement was made with the complainant, and Justice STERRS discharged the prisoner.

DRIVING OFF SWINE.—Wm. McCann and Thos. Kehoe are charged with having stolen ten live hogs from the pen of Bryan Donohue, at Morrisania, Westchester County. One of the animals was sold to a Fortieth-street butcher, and the rest were left at Bull's Head, to be disposed of there. The complainant keeps his hogs nowhere but in Morrisania. Seventy-sixth-street, between Second and Third avenues, being his own abiding place. Justice KELLY committed McCann to prison. Kehoe is missing.

LOST HIS WATCH.—Mr. Thomas H. Robinson, of No. 834 Broadway, stood at the box office of the Winter Garden, purchasing a ticket for the performances. He was jostled by a man named Charles W. Langley, and immediately missed his $40 watch. Langley was arrested, and Justice KELLY committed him for trial.

THE MURDER AT THE FIVE POINTS.

The Victim not Identified—Post-Mortem Examination—The Theory of the Murder, &c.

Several persons called at the Sixth Precinct Station-house yesterday to see if the man who was found murdered on Tuesday evening at the corner of Worth and Little Water streets could be identified by them. None, however, seemed to recognize him. He was a rather good-looking person, of about 28 years of age, and, from his dress, is believed to have been a laborer. From some cause which we could not learn, an inquest upon the remains has not yet been held. Dr. GEORGE B. BOUTON made a post-mortem examination in the afternoon, and the result places it beyond doubt that the man was murdered, though not by strangulation, as was at first supposed by the Police. The examination revealed a fracture about three inches long on the right side of the head, extending over a portion of both the parietal and temporal bones. Directly under the fracture was a mass of coagulated blood—perhaps 12 ounces, in all—pressing upon the whole surface of the brain. The doctor thinks that the blow on the head knocked the man senseless, and it is probable his death was almost instantaneous. The thoracic and abdominal organs were perfectly healthy.

The house where the murder was committed is a rickety frame building, owned by a Mrs. GORDON, late widow of CROWN, whose name the corner bears. This woman keeps the lowest kind of a grocery gin-shop on the first floor. The police assert that, any hour after dark, this shop is filled with denizens of the locality, all stupefied with the poison they procure there, while the floor is literally covered with drunken men and women, lying in the filth which their nauseated stomachs eject. Over this liquor saloon was the room occupied by BENJAMIN and his mistress, in which the man was found dead in bed. Its crooked, dirty floor—its low ceiling—its one window, destitute of glass, which barely serves to admit sufficient light in broad day to make visible the scanty, broken furniture, betrayed the squalid wretchedness and abject poverty of its foccupants. On entering the fetid atmosphere, a stench, comparable only to the concentrated essence of the garbage boxes of tenement houses, greets the nostrils, and clings to the clothes for hours after emergence into the open air.

The theory of the murder is, that on Tuesday afternoon, in BENJAMIN'S absence, money was furnished by the murdered man, who entered upon a carousal with the three women, and the men for whom the police are in search—the liquor being procured at the store underneath. After the deceased and the women had become drowsy from the effects of their potations, it is supposed that the other two men, who are known to be thieves, struck their victim the murderous blow which he received, and then rifled his pockets. This they were the better able to do without detection, on account of the darkness of the room, and the women all say that an altercation and scuffle took place.

The prisoners are still confined in the Station-house, to await the Coroner's investigation. JANE MCCABE and JOSEPHINE SMITH bear the marks of lives spent in dissipation. JANE BRADFORD, on the contrary, has the appearance of one who has lately entered upon her present course of life. She is still young, rather intelligent, and prepossessing in appearance. A difficulty with her husband, who is a morning-paper printer, she says, caused her to leave her home and her little girl, five years of age, only a few weeks ago. Her paramour, JOHN H. BENJAMIN, says he never drinks intoxicating liquors. He is an American, about 28 years of age, and makes his living by selling muffins and oysters from a stand by the Park railings. He is an intelligent man, and that, with his respectable appearance, makes one wonder he should have chosen such a dwelling-place. He represents that he accidentally met JANE BRADFORD, two weeks ago, when she had just made her debut on the Points, and believing her desirous of escaping the total degradation which would have quickly overtaken her, he invited her to take charge permanently of his domestic affairs, first exacting a promise that she should give up drinking. This promise she kept faithfully until Tuesday, when her intoxication resulted as it did.

THE REGISTRY LAW.

Contest in the Board of Supervisors—The Republicans Rally and Block the Game of the Democrats—Supervisor Little at the Brakes—Capital Illustration of Partisan Legislation in City Matters.

The Board of Supervisors met at 7 o'clock last night, ELIJAH F. PURDY, President, in the chair. A communication was received from the Corporation Counsel relative to the appointment of Registrars, and the expense connected therewith, to the County, in which he stated that the expenses under the new Registry law were a legal County charge, and that the Registrars are officers distinct and separate from Inspectors of Election. On motion, it was ordered to be placed on the minutes.

Supervisor TWEED moved to proceed with the appointment of Registrars for the Seventh Ward—all the Republican members but Supervisor VOORHIES were present.

Supervisor LITTLE moved to postpone further proceedings till Tuesday next, at 3 o'clock. He was followed on the same point by Supervisor KENNEDY, who, however, would not vote with his friend, Supervisor LITTLE, to cast an obstacle in the way of the majority, if such were merely the intention. Supervisor BLUNT also would throw no objection in the way, and would not vote for Supervisor LITTLE'S resolution for postponement, if it were merely made to impede action.

Supervisor LITTLE said that he had understood that the appointment of Registrars was to be equally distributed between the two parties, and that no advantage would be taken of his absence. Had he so understood, nothing could have kept him away. He had no desire to obstruct proceedings, but he desired fairness.

Supervisor BELL emphatically denied that there had been any agreement that the appointments should be divided between the parties. He would testify that Supervisor LITTLE had always been attentive to his duties, and that the odium which had been sought to be thrown upon him for non-attendance was not deserved, inasmuch as his colleagues, Supervisors STEWART and KENNEDY were also absent, one of whom was gone to Baltimore to attend an Odd Fellows' meeting. The Republican members, STEWART and BLUNT, were not present since the informal meeting, and was it to be expected, when the Democratic members were in their places and the Republican members absent that the appointments should be equally divided? Supervisor BELL inveighed with loud lungs, if not with good oratory and unexceptionable grammar, against the new Registry law. On resuming his seat, he lighted a segar, and puffed at it with a will.

Supervisor BLUNT took up the argument, and excused himself for non-attendance on the previous meeting. If he had not thought that the appointments would be equally divided, he would have been present.

Supervisor BELL made another long speech, in which he said that the Republicans had expected to get an equal division of the Registrars, but they should remember the proverb: "Man proposes, but God disposes." And God had disposed in this instance of the Registrars, to brand the iniquity of this wicked law, which was passed only to add $25,000 to the public taxes, in order to lavish that sum on the partisans of the Republican side.

Supervisor KENNEDY desired the President to call Supervisor BELL to order for his blasphemy.

Supervisor BELL begged to apologize to the Board for his blasphemy. He was not in the habit of taking any Holy name in his mouth.

Supervisor KENNEDY again addressed the Board, and the debate was continued for some time. "There are but five of us [Republicans] here," said Supervisor KENNEDY. "Judas [Supervisor VOORHIS] is not here. Three months ago I was told on the highest authority he would not be here when we proceeded to ballot for Registrars of Election. I did not venture to tell my colleagues so, for I hardly dared mention it to myself. So we are here, five against six, and the six give no symptom of showing us any generosity. I would say to my Democratic friends in the Board, 'Make what you can now; we will have our turn hereafter.'"

Supervisor STEWART said that Supervisor VOORHIS was unavoidably detained, and that he would yet arrive. He trusted that the Democratic members of the Board would not take advantage of the unintentional absence of a member.

The question to postpone was then taken, and resulted in 4 ayes and 7 nays. Motion therefore lost.

Thereupon followed a protracted contest for postponement, Supervisor LITTLE varying the modes of attack upon all the enmattled Democracy with vast ingenuity and indefatigable perseverance.

Supervisor TWEED finally withdrew his previous motion, and moved that the Board should proceed to ballot for Registrars for the First District of the Seventh Ward alone, and afterwards let the other districts take care of themselves. Carried.

Supervisor KENNEDY nominated John K. Briggs for the Republican Party.

Supervisor TWEED nominated Patrick Keenan, Bernard McGuire and John Harris, for the Democratic Party.

The Democratic nominees were elected.

Supervisor TWEED moved that the Board proceed to elect Registrars for the Second District of the Seventh Ward.

Supervisor LITTLE moved another postponement, but he was not seconded, and the balloting proceeded.

Francis Gillen, John Cronin and Anthony T. Gallagher, Democrats, were elected.

The balloting proceeded for the Third District of the Seventh Ward. David P. Arnold, Michael Mulquain and J. L. Johnson, Democrats.

For the Fourth District, J. J. Milhau and J. Wortman, Democrats, and George W. Warner, American, were elected.

For the Fifth District, J. W. McKeever, Democrat, R. Thomas, Democrat, and Robert Murray, Republican, were elected.

For the Sixth District, Edward L. Duryea, John Manier and Edward Shandler, Democrats, were elected.

For the Seventh District, J. Fitch, Jacob W. Valentine, and Augustus W. Oliver, Democrats, were elected.

For the Eighth District, H. Close, T. Waters, Democrats, and J. Nicholson, Republican, were elected.

For the Ninth District, John J. Blair, William S. Touers, and Alfred W. Palmer, were elected;

Between each of these ballotings Supervisor LITTLE renewed his motion to adjourn, which was in every case lost.

The ballotings for the Eighth Ward were proceeded with as follows:

Second District—J. Mander, B. H. Harris, R. B. Peeney, Democrats.

BROOKLYN INTELLIGENCE.

REPUBLICAN SENATORIAL CONVENTIONS.—The Republican Convention for the Second Senatorial District met last evening in Republican Hall, No. 9 Court-street. On the first formal ballot, HENRY R. PIERSON received 17 of the 27 votes cast, and was declared the nominee of the party. The nomination, on motion of GEORGE W. PARSONS, was made unanimous. Mr. PIERSON is a lawyer by profession, and at one time represented the Third Ward in the Board of Aldermen. The District in which he runs embraces the First, Second, Third, Fourth, Fifth, Seventh, Eleventh, Thirteenth and Nineteenth Wards. The other candidates before the Convention were H. B. DURYEA, who received 9 votes, and WILLIAM WALL, who received 1 vote. The Convention for the Third District, which embraces the Sixth, Eighth, Ninth, Tenth, Twelfth, Fourteenth, Fifteenth, Sixteenth, Seventeenth and Eighteenth Wards of Brooklyn, and the five towns in Kings County, met at the same place yesterday afternoon, and nominated JOHN G. BERGEN, of the Eighth Ward. An informal ballot was taken, when the vote stood as follows: J. G. Bergen, 17; Lucien Birdseye, 5; A. B. Bayliss, 3; J. S. T. Stranahan, 3; Blank, 2. Mr. BERGEN has represented the First District in Assembly one term, and at one time represented the Eighth Ward in the Common Council. At present he represents the same Ward in the Board of Supervisors, and he is also a member of the Board of Education. The Republican Assembly Conventions meet on Friday, and the County Convention of the same party will meet on Saturday next.

THE REV. O. B. FROTHINGHAM'S ADDRESS BEFORE THE CHRISTIAN UNION OF BROOKLYN.—The Rev. Mr. FROTHINGHAM delivered an address, last night, at the Polytechnic Institute, on the subject of "The Condition of Full and Free Inquiry into Religion." It was listened to by a small, but attentive audience. The Rev. gentleman wished to prove that, while all religions strictly adhered to certain tenets, yet there were none so conservative that would not yield something to religious inquiry. He drew contrasts between the Catholic and Protestant beliefs, and quoted from St. Paul's injunction to his disciples, to "Prove all things." He held his audience's attention for over an hour, to a very clear address, replete with good reasoning, and full of thought.

A BOY KILLED BY RUM.—At Cold Spring, recently, a boy, 6 years old, was induced, by the keeper of a drinking saloon, to drink some brandy, by telling him it was cider. The boy drank so much that he died the same night in spasms. This statement is made on the authority of the Rev. Mr. CODLING, of Cold Spring.

POISONED BY STRAMONIUM.—A little son of T. T. SHEFFIELD, No. 4 Clark-street, was poisoned on Tuesday last by eatings the seed of stramonium, or what is sometimes called "stink-weed." The lad was playing on the Heights, and was induced to eat the seeds by a companion. Antidotes were promptly administered, but whether in time to save the boy's life, remains to be seen.

THE POTATO CROP.—The Long Island newspapers state that the late potato crop is much damaged by rot; the Peach-blow has suffered the most, while the different varieties of the Mercer are generally good.

HEAVY DAMAGES CLAIMED.—The parents of E. W. HUSKINSON, recently killed on the Flushing Railroad, have brought a suit against the Company for $2,000 damages.

NEW YACHT.—A new yacht, named Kronscht, was launched a few days since at Flushing, from the yard of WM. H. DOUGHTY.

Somehow KNOX has the faculty of making "hits" with his styles that not a little puzzles the heads of more unfortunate hatters.

WEDNESDAY, Sept. 28, P. M.

Some of the outside Money lenders, because of the activity noticed among the Brokers yesterday, advanced their terms this morning to 7 ℔ cent. on demand loan. Other parties were lenders at 6 ℔ cent. as usual, and before the day closed the ease in supply was again quite marked. Several of the private Banking firms and Trust Companies tendered Money at the close to the Brokers at 6 ℔ cent. There is more facility this week, undoubtedly, in placing Money subject to call, without notice, at from 6 to 7 ℔ cent., and this change affects in time the Discount market for long date paper. A list of six months' bills, first-class indorsement, was done to-day at 8 ℔ cent., though the Brokers report a reluctance on the part of the Importers to pay over 7 ℔ cent. to anticipates their Receivables, as most of them are already ahead and easy in their remittances to Europe. The Banks are still accommodating their regular dealers, and the demand not excessive, at 7 ℔ cent., but rule their paper down to 60@90 days. In the absence of any large offering of short date bills, the probability is that the Discount line will run off this week from $800,000 to $1,000,000, without inconvenience to the general movement. There is nothing doing in Exchange since the close of the mail by the Persia. The steamers on Saturday are both German, but both call at Southampton on their way to Bremen and Hamburg, to deliver a mail and such Bullion as may be shipped for London. The engagements talked of thus far are moderate. There was another arrival of Mexican dollars from New Orleans to-day, $157,000, which will probably be reshipped to the English market. The Customs, to-day, are $102,000; other receipts into the Sub-Treasury, $107,000; disbursements, $225,000; balance this afternoon, $5,314,845.

The activity on the Stock Exchange continues, and speculation is quite spirited and by no means confined this week to the Bull side. The interest inside the Board of Brokers, who have been anxiously looking to and seeking for the reaction, for three or four weeks past, have derived some encouragement from the agitation of dearer rates for Money, and the falling Bank Averages, and it will be noticed, from the list of sales, that the time options, both seller and buyer, are put out with considerable freedom. The weak spots developed in the estimation of the sellers for the fall, since Monday, are the predominant Western Road shares, partly because of the previously large advance, and partly on the interruption to the third week's traffic in September, by the rain-storm. No decided effort on the other side has been put forth to check this declining tendency in Galena and Rock Island, certainly none in Michigan Central, Michigan Southern, or Illinois Central, and at the early Board to-day, the sales at yesterday's rates were renewed, and carried ¼ ℔ cent. lower on Galena. There was a pretty free demand, however, all around, and after the adjournment of the Second Board, ⅜ ℔ cent. advance was paid on Galena, and ¼ ℔ cent. on Rock Island; the market closing firm for these stocks at 74¼ and 67½, respectively; and New-York Central at 81⅜ ℔ cent. Of the last named the sales of the day ran up to about 8000 shares, the price opening, as it closed yesterday, at 81⅜, then falling to 81¼@⅜, and finally returning to the price of yesterday, after a very spirited movement to have the market down, both at the Board and on the street. In Pacific Mail the Bulls had the control, and put the price to 80½ ℔ cent. against 78½ yesterday afternoon. Reading also improved in demand and advanced to 44¾ ℔ cent. On the State and United States Stocks the disposition was to sell on the calculation of higher rates for Money, and $50,000 of the Five ℔ Cents of the United States Coupon, were put out at 102⅜@102½, seller 60 days, and a full business was done in Missouri Sixes—of which there is an additional supply of $100,000 from one of the railway companies in that State—at 84@83⅜@83¾, and finally 84, buyer 30 days, and 83⅞ cash bid. Tennessees were 89, and Californias 83¼. In Railway mortgages, the market was rather firmer,—Eries, Hudsons, Illinois Centrals and Michigan Centrals all a fraction higher. The general market left off firm, with an improved temper in regard to the probable working of the Money Market, and with better news from the West of the Grain and other movements over the Railways into Chicago. The later Foreign Grain and Financial news by the Circassia is, of course, construed favorably.

The Stonington Railroad Company held their annual meeting in Providence yesterday, and elected the following-named gentlemen Directors for the ensuing year: Mathew Morgan, Thomas Tileston, Samuel D. Babcock, Hamilton Blydenburgh, William F. Cary, Samuel Sloan, and William H. Macy, of New-York; James I. Day, of Stonington, and N. F. Dixon, of Westerly.

There are more goods going West (says the Detroit Tribune) than at any period since 1856. The boats of the Western Transportation Company alone, brought to Detroit eleven hundred tons since Saturday night. The railroads are reaping great benefits by the improvement in the transportation business.
